SEPTEMBER'S HERE!

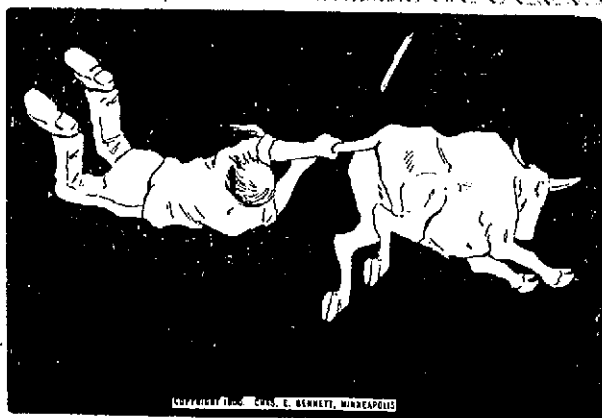

ITS an ideal month, the nights are cool and the crisp air is delightful with this first fall month. Business crosses a trade line to anticipate what men want in is almost a science. Anybody with money can fill a store with goods but it takes the right kind of goods to fill it with people.

The Fall Fashions are fully set, the three button sack, the straight front round sack and the two and three button double breasted sacks are accepted styles for business and general wear. Then forsemi-dress is the cutaway with fancy trousers. Suits from $5 to $20 or any stopping point between.

CROSSING HORROR.

ONE MAN KILLED, TWO HURT.

Wagon Load of Men is Struck While Crossing St. Paul Tracks With Fatal Result to One of Them.

Last Wednesday evening about ten minutes after six a wagon load of men who were returning home from work at the mill of the Grand Rapids lumber company were struck by a car on the St. Paul road, the accident resulting in the death of Hiram Rouse and the injury of Frank Laughlin and Albert Zomrow.

The men were bound east and were moving at a good rate. Their team had just crossed the track and as the wagon got on the track a box car loomed up before them and the next instant struck the back wheels of the rig.

The box car was being pushed by an engine which was doing some switching. On the box car sat one brakeman and the conductor of the train. The brakeman was nearest the rig, but it all happened so suddenly that he was not able to give much of a description of the affair. He stated that he saw one of the men jump off from the wagon and an instant afterward the car struck him, but from where he sat he could not tell whether he went under the car or what became of him.

The engineer stated after the accident that the car did not strike the wagon at all, but that he thought it ran into a telephone pole near the track, caused by the horses shying to one side. The wagon did strike the telephone pole, being thrown against it by the collision with the car.

Frank Laughlin, who was severely injured by a contusion in the side and numerous bruises about the head and body, stated that the first he knew was seeing the box car loom up before them, and that was all he knew of the affair until he came to in the wagon in which he was being carried to the doctor to have his wounds dressed. Since the accident he has been at the Commercial hotel and is gradually recovering.

Hiram Rouse, the man who was killed, was dragged down the track past the water tank, and his head was crushed in horrible shape and was dead when picked up. He had apparently been struck by the car and thrown to the ground, then the car passed over him, and his clothes caught in the brake beam and he was dragged along the ground and his life bruised out on the ties. Had his clothes not caught on the car it is entirely probable that he would have been ground beyond human semblance by the locomotive.

The only other man on the rig who was hurt seriously was Albert Zomrow. He had one leg broken in two places, and sustained numerous smaller bruises about the body, which while more or less painful, will not inconvenience him when he recovers from his broken bones. He is reported to be recovering as rapidly as can be expected under the circumstances.

Several persons who were coming up and across the track state that the whole thing occurred so quick that they hardly had time to see how it was done, but they are all positive in their statements that the car struck the wagon and dashed it over against the telephone pole. They also saw Rouse as he jumped from the wagon and state that he was unable to recover his feet upon striking the ground, but staggered for an instant and before he had gained his balance the car struck him and rolled him over and over beneath the brake beam. When the car was stopped the body was found to be wedged beneath the structure and it was with great difficulty that it was removed.

Upon learning of the disaster Justice Getts impanelled a coroner's jury which viewed the remains and then took an adjournment until Monday in order to secure all the witnesses possible, that the testimony bearing on the case might be complete.

At nine o'clock on Monday morning the coroner's jury met again and the examination of witnesses commenced. There were a large number examined, including the trainmen, parties who had witnessed the accident and men who occupied the wagon. The majority of the latter were unable to give a very clear version of what happened, as those who had remained on the wagon when the shock came were either rendered insensible or else shaken up so that they could not state just what had occurred or else had not seen anything of it and the first they knew was when they found themselves flying through the air. Those who had seen the car coming in time to get off the wagon had only made their escape by a very close margin, and generally by the time they had struck the ground and recovered their equilibrium enough to look about them the wagon had been struck and was out of sight on the other side of the car. One of the occupants of the wagon testified to having jumped off on the west side of the track and as he turned around he saw the car strike the wagon, but had seen no more of the accident until he noticed the body of a man being rolled over beneath the car.

All the occupants of the wagon testified that they had left the mill yard on the walk, and that after getting beyond the lumber sheds the team had been urged to a slow trot, at which rate they continued until the track was reached and the wagon struck. They also stated they had heard no bell or other noise that would be calculated to warn them that an engine was approaching, although none of them could swear that a bell had not been rung, they simply being positive that they had not heard anything of the kind.

The testimony of the engineer was

to the effect that he had got a signal to stop and at the same time had seen the wagon on the track and had applied the brakes, but that an instant afterward he saw the wagon clear the track and supposing that they had cleared the car he turned on steam again, but had been told that there was a man under the car and had immediately stopped the engine, by which time they had reached the vicinity of the water tank. He gave it as his opinion that the car had not struck the wagon at all.

The brakeman who sat near the end of the car stated that when the wagon appeared in front of the train he had given the signal to stop but that he did not know whether the engineer was able to see the signal from where he was. He had also seen a man jump onto the track from the wagon and supposed that was the man that had been run down by the train.

Among the witnesses called was Roy Getts. He testified that he had been returning from work about six o'clock or shortly after, and that when he reached the St. Paul track he heard a locomotive bell ringing. Looking to the north where the noise came he saw the engine coming with one car ahead of it. He was riding a bicycle at the time and seeing that he had time to get across the track he increased his speed and continued on his way. After crossing the track he saw the team and wagon load of men coming and as he passed them he saw that he waved his handkerchief at them at the same time crying out and warning them that a train was right at the crossing. He stated that he was only four feet from the wagon when he shouted this warning, and that he heard some one on the wagon say to hurry and they would get across. After passing the wagon he stated that he stopped his wheel and leaning it against a telephone pole looked back just in time to see the box car strike a man who was in the middle of the track.

The men on the wagon swore without exception that they saw nobody on a wheel, nor did they hear anybody yell or wave a handkerchief at them. Mr. Getts stated that to the best of his knowledge the train was moving about four or five miles an hour.

The taking of the evidence occupied all of Monday and Tuesday with the assistance of a stenographer, and a large number of witnesses were examined, the testimony being all in at six o'clock on Tuesday night.

The coroner's jury met again on Tuesday evening and after considering the evidence as submitted, brought in the following verdict, which is given in full:

An inquisition taken at the city of Grand Rapids in the county of Wood and state of Wisconsin on the 9th day of September, 1902, before W. H. Getts, one of the justices of the peace of the said county upon the view of the body of Hiram E. Rouse there dead, by the jurors whose names are hereunto subscribed, who, being duly sworn to inquire on behalf of this state, when, in what manner, and by what means the said Hiram E. Rouse came to his death, upon their oath do say: That the said Hiram E. Rouse came to his death on the 3rd day of September, 1902, at the city of Grand Rapids, in Wood county, Wisconsin, in the yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company at a point where the track of said company crosses Cranberry street in said city, by being run over by a Chicago & Northwestern box car numbered 36754, drawn by engine number 653 belonging to the said Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company and with E. C. Boyer as conductor and A. J. Lambert as engineer. That the said Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company and said E. C. Boyer, conductor, and said A. J. Lambert, engineer are in part responsible for the death of said Hiram E. Rouse. We further find that the teamster, Alex Gackowski, and others, who were riding on the wagon which was struck by said box car were also in part responsible for the death of said Hiram E. Rouse. In testimony whereof the said justice of the peace and the said jurors of this inquest have hereunto set their hands the day and year aforesaid.

W. H. Getts, Justice of the peace. T. J. Cooper, S. L. Brooks, Joseph Vincent, Nate Anderson, Charles S. Whittlesey, Philip Sheridan Jesmire, jurors.

Bought Standing Pine

A dispatch from Duluth says that Alger Smith & Co., through the vice-president, Mr. John Miller, of Duluth, have sold their standing pine in the Pigeon River district of Canada, together with camps, horses and improvements, on the Pigeon and Arrow rivers to the Pigeon River Lumber Co. of Port Arthur. The consideration is withheld, but it is said to involve six figures. Alger, Smith & Co. will hereafter confine their logging operations to the United States.

Alger, Smith & Co. have conducted logging operations on the Pigeon river in Canada for the past three years. The logs were rafted from the mouth of the river to the head of lakes to be sawed. The company has expended in the neighborhood of $75,000 in improvements on the river and for sorting grounds the Pigeon river is said to be in fine shape for log driving purposes at present.—Times Journal, Fort William, Ont.

NEWLIGHT COMPANY

LOCAL MEN ARE INTERESTED

Have Bought Plant at Watertown, Which They Will Operate.—Other Items of Interest.

During the past week a deal has been consummated by which P. L. Utley, T. A. Taylor and William Scott of this city have become interested in the electric light plant at Watertown.

These three gentlemen in company with capitalists at Watertown have purchased the electric light plant in that city and organized a company under the name of the Watertown Electric Light company, and the new company will operate the plant for the purpose of furnishing light and power to the citizens of that place.

The purchase includes a water power at that place amounting to about 100 horse power which will be used to assist in operating the plant. The electric light plant in its present condition is an antiquated affair of about 225 horse power, which is entirely insufficient to supply the city with the light wanted, and it is the intention of the new owners to improve and bring it up to date and enlarge the capacity enough so that the city can be supplied both with power and light and do it at a cost that will make it possible for a great deal more current to be used.

Mr. Utley is now in Watertown looking after some business matters connected with the new company, and as soon as a new man can be obtained to take charge of the plant here he will go to Watertown, where he will have business management of the new company. As Watertown is a good sized city where there is a fair demand for both light and power there is no reason why the new venture should not prove a financial success.

Jack the Hugger.—Some of our young ladies report that this city has within its confines a genuine "Jack, the Hugger," and several of the girls state that they have already been hugged. Details are meagre, but one girl who was hugged claims that it was the worst she ever experienced. Just what she meant by this is not known, but it is supposed that the fellow hugged her in rather a haphazard manner and did not pay attention to the little details that are the most essential features of an affair of this sort. Whether the young lady had had sufficient experience to pass proper judgment as to the merits of an affair of this kind is also not known. One young lady who was asked what she would do in case she were hugged, stated that she would stand still and scream. So far as can be learned none of the other girls have screamed.

Picking Cranberries.—A number of the cranberry men began picking their early berries last Monday morning, the threatening aspect of the weather having induced them to start a trifle earlier than they had at first intended. The remainder will probably start in without exception next Monday. Some growers report a scarcity of pickers, while others report that they have had more applications than they could attend to. All report a good crop and the only thing to be feared now is a frost hard enough to freeze the berries.

Melons are Late.—Many persons who have been in the habit of regaling themselves with the melons from the farm of Frank Whitlock have been disappointed up to the present writing. He has had some melons ripen this season but the process has been so slow that he has not been able to bring any to town, as the demand right at the farm has been more than he can accommodate, and on Sunday last a large number of would-be purchasers were turned away, the demand having exhausted the supply early in the day.

Had Much Trouble.—After many set backs and much extra work Joseph Cohen got started on his sea wall on Saturday, and since that time fairly good progress has been made. In order to keep the cofferdam free from water it has been necessary to operate the steam pump night and day. The water in the river had been excessively low until the work was started on this wall, since which time it has been at quite a respectable height.

Some Nice Vegetables.—About the best exhibit of vegetables that was sent to the state fair from this section was done by James Gibson, who raised the truck in his garden in this city. The lot consisted of several cabbages weighing from 28 to 32 pounds, some fine potatoes, beets, carrots, etc. The vegetables made a very nice showing and were certainly fine specimens.

Sawed his Thumb.—Peter Latus, who is employed in the Oberbeck Furniture factory, cut a bad gash in his thumb on Monday by getting it in contact with one of the saws. The wound was dressed by a surgeon and he will probably be able to continue his work in the near future.

Will Start Jewelry Store.—A. F. Roach of Washburn arrived in the city the fore part of the week and intends opening up a jewelry store here. He has rented a part of the LeBreche building on the east side which he will use temporarily until a more favorable location can be secured.

Lost an Eye.—Fred, the son of August North of the town of Rudolph, suffered the loss of his right eye on Thursday of last week. He was working about a steam thrasher when the belt broke and struck him over the eye, tearing away the eyebrow and ruining the sight of the eye.

Hunters Galore.—County Clerk Renne has issued up to date 623 hunters licenses. As all of these are for the hunting of small game it is hardly any wonder that there was a sudden thinning out of the prairie chickens after the first few days of the open season.

Marriage Licenses.—The county clerk has granted the following marriage licenses during the past week: Mike McNamee and Clara Brandt, both of Marshfield. James J. Parkes and Rosa Smith, both of Marshfield.

Rose for Governor.

David S. Rose of Milwaukee was nominated for governor at the democratic convention held in Milwaukee last Wednesday, receiving 335 votes on the first ballot. Burr W. Jones was the next in number of votes received. The remainder of the ticket nominated was as follows:

For Secretary of State—Louis A. Lange of Fond du Lac.

For State Treasurer—Edward L. Lockow of Baraboo.

For Attorney General—Olaf R. Skaar of La Crosse.

For Railroad Commissioner—William E. Redner of Ashland.

For Insurance Commissioner, Wm. Ferber of New London.

For Superintendent of Public Instruction—Karl Mathie of Wausau.

The convention was a most harmonious one and there were noticeable among the delegates many who have not been identified with the party for several years past on account of differences of opinion on certain planks of the democratic platform. There seemed to be the greatest desire to pull together, and there was not a candidate for nomination who had not expressed his determination to turn in and help whoever the choice of the convention should be.

That the ticket nominated by the democrats is a strong one is admitted by all who are broad minded enough to size up the matter without bias, and the general statement made by men who have canvassed the situation to any extent is that the election will be a close one, and that it will be any man's race until the votes are counted, with the odds a trifle in favor of the democratic nominee.

Mr. Rose started out on his campaign on Tuesday morning and the chances are that there will be an active campaign continued until election day.

New Furnaces in High School.

The school commissioners held a meeting last Thursday evening and among the other business transacted they decided to put a new set of furnaces in the Howe High school.

It was the intention to repair the old furnaces in the school, but when they had been torn down they were found to be in such bad shape that it would have been criminal carelessness to attempt to use them any longer. Several great cracks were found in the furnaces, and it was considered by those who examined them that all that saved the building from burning was the fact that there is an excellent draft at the school which carried everything up the chimney instead of allowing it to stop on the way.

Three furnaces will be put in to replace the two taken out, as the two that were in were badly burned out on account of their having been crowded in the attempt to heat the building properly. The new furnaces will have a five-foot fan in connection which will drive the heat about the building instead of allowing it to work by gravity as heretofore.

The new furnaces will cost about $2,000 and it was not the intention of the school board to replace the apparatus at this time, but the condition it was found to be in compelled the change at once. It is the intention to have the new apparatus in by the 20th of September.

Charged With Forgery

L. G. Torrence was arrested at Babcock on Sunday night on a charge of forgery by Sheriff McLaughlin and brought to this city and lodged in jail. It is claimed that Torrence wrote an order for five dollars and signed the name of Charles Low at the bottom, and presented the order to G. W. Lyons, asking him to cash it. After doing so Mr. Lyons became suspicious of the matter and happened to meet Mr. Low the same afternoon he interviewed him on the subject, when he discovered that the order was a forgery. The sheriff was immediately telephoned for and he went down on the evening train and landed his man without a hitch.

While out hunting on Sunday Fred Mosher received a charge of bird shot in his anatomy that surprised him somewhat for a few minutes. He was out in company with his brother William and Henry Ebert and they became separated and Mr. Ebert took a shot at some game and as Fred happened to be behind some brush in the line of fire, he got a part of the charge. He was struck in both arms and the body, but suffered no inconvenience from the accident after the pellets had been extracted by a surgeon.

First Congregational Church.

Rev. Shaw's subject Sunday morning will be, "The Power of Silent Activities." In the evening there will be a special service to commemorate the death of the late President McKinley. Special music and addresses.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET

Proceedings of Convention at Milwaukee.

ROSE FOR GOVERNOR.

Wattawa for Lieutenant Governor and Lange for Secretary of State.—The Platform.

For Governor—David S. Rose, Milwaukee.
For Lieutenant Governor—John Wattawa, Baraboo.
For Secretary of State—Louis A. Lange, Fond du Lac.
For State Treasurer—Edward L. Luckow, Baraboo.
For Attorney General—Olaf R. Skar, La Crosse.
For Railroad Commissioner—William E. Redner, Ashland.
For Insurance Commissioner—William Feber, New London.
For Superintendent of Public Instruction—Karl Mithle, Wausau.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 2, 1902.—It was 10 minutes past 12 when Chairman Warden's gavel fell to call the Wisconsin Democratic convention to order this noon. Many of the delegates were not in their seats and the confusion attending the rush to get seated necessitated the lapse of several minutes before the chairman could proceed.

"The convention will come to order," said Chairman Warden. "I will not occupy your time in reading the official call," he continued, "for I assume all of you understand the purpose for which we are here or you would not have gathered in such large numbers. At the direction of the state central committee I have to announce the selection of the following temporary organization:

Temporary Chairman—J. E. Davies, Watertown.
Secretary—W. C. Collins, Portage. Asst. Secretaries—P. B. Schütz, Milwaukee; C. Clever, Eau Claire.

Mr. Davies was in excellent voice. His tones penetrated to every corner of the room, even to the gallery, though there was not a soul there to hear him. He spoke well, with good emphasis and all the force and expression of voice from the tremble to the basso profundo of a well-trained orator. Throughout he was interrupted by applause.

MAYOR DAVID S. ROSE.
(Who Promises to Break the Record in Campaigning.)

A Raw About Proxies.

Everything was harmonious until the temporary chairman concluded his address and then the uproar began and punishment reigned for a time. The consequence of it all is that it pertains ill for the chances of David S. Rose, although the strenuous work of his lieutenants and friends during the recess may smooth over matters and restore confidence.

The rumour was precipitated by a resolution offered by James H. Stover, the curl-locked orator and lieutenant of Mayor Rose from the First ward, which had for its object the shutting out of proxies unless they were held by persons residing in the same ward as the regular electors. This was taken as a move to head off the work that has been done in the state by the friends of Dr. Anderson and other of the outside candidates in securing proxies, and it was credited to the friends of Mayor Rose, as it came from one of his most active workers.

After much discussion Mr. Stover's resolution was referred to the committee on resolutions and was not heard from again.

State Central Committee.

The following members of the state central committee were announced:
First District—P. J. Mount, Jauessville; C. N. Freeman, Racine.
Second District—John Barry, Montello; W. H. Rogers, Madison.
Third District—W. W. Evans, Spring Green; A. L. Bushnell, Lancaster.
Fourth District—Peter Barry, Milwaukee; Michael Blom, Milwaukee.
Fifth District—D. J. Hemlock, Waukesha; A. J. Grundmann, Milwaukee.
Sixth District—Murtin Luckes, Dodge; William Jonckhe, Cranke.
Seventh District—W. H. Fawley, Eau Claire; W. R. McCall, Tomah.
Eighth District—Fred Rawson, Wausau; J. C. Nolan, Manitowish.
Ninth District—J. E. Deane, De Pere; Dan E. Madigan, Marinette.
Tenth District—J. J. Hogan, Antigo; D. D. Conway, Grand Rapids.
Eleventh District—John M. Bashford, St. Croix; E. D. Leonard, Chippewa.

Chairman Kearney's Speech.

Nothing was accomplished at the afternoon session beyond the perfecting of the permanent organization and the presentation of the speech of Permanent Chairman Kearney.

Applause for ex-Senator Vilas.

There was a long wait after Mr. Kearney concluded and then some called for Vilas. There was a loud demonstration as he made his way to the stage which continued for several minutes. He spoke for twenty minutes, urging moderation and abstinence to the old time principles of Democracy. The trusts and the Republican party were bitterly arraigned, and while he congratulated the nation upon the escape of President Roosevelt from serious accident, he denounced the measures suggested by the President for relief from trusts and combinations, saying they were impossible of minimization. When Mr. Vilas concluded, Chairman Kearney announced the platform committee would not be ready to make its report until 7 o'clock and at 5:30 o'clock the convention adjourned.

WEDNESDAY EVENING'S SESSION.

Rose Nominated for Governor.

Milwaukee, Wis., September 4, 1902.

Mayor David S. Rose was nominated for governor on the first ballot, a few minutes before midnight, by the Democratic state convention last night.

Immediately following, and before the mayor could be brought before the convention, John Wattawa of Kewaunee was nominated by acclamation for lieutenant governor.

It was 11:25 o'clock before the roll call began and it had not proceeded far before it became evident that Mayor

Rose would be the nominee. Just as the roll of Wood county, in the Tenth district, was completed there was a murmur from the First ward that told everyone that the mayor had obtained more than a majority, and it was taken up and repeated with every announcement of a vote for him during the call of the Eleventh and last district.

When the roll was completed the mayor had 339 votes; Burr W. Jones,

103; W. A. Anderson, 75; Neil Brown,

45; George W. Peck, 46, and J. E. Jones, 19.

The Stampede Begins.

Before the result could be announced the stampede began. Waukegan was the first on the floor. It had given the mayor

11 votes at first, with 2 for Burr Jones and 9 for Neil Brown. The entire roll votes swung into line and then in rapid succession came Juneau, Dodge, Rock,

Waukesha and Green counties. The convention was in an uproar. Delegates were hoarsely shouting for recognition in the frantic effort to get on the loaded wagon, causing so much confusion that the secretary became nervous and Chairman Kearney declined to recognize anyone until quiet was restored.

When the stampede was over the mayor had 334 votes; B. W. Jones, 81; W. A.

Anderson, 72; J. E. Jones, 17; Neil

Brown, 37, and G. W. Peck, 26.

It required some little time for some of the delegates to find out what was happening, and then there was another rush to change the ballot, but Chairman

Kearney declined to listen, having declared the ballot closed. One Tip Van Winkle woke up while the secretary was about to announce the result and seemed surprised at the roar of laughter that greeted him when he endeavored to give his entire delegation to the mayor. After the announcement of the ballot the nomination was made unanimous.

As to the nomination of the mayor for governor and the appointment of the committee to escort him to the convention, an effort was made to prevent the nomination of John Wattawa for lieutenant governor by forcing an adjournment.

The motion came from the Eighth district, but was quickly voted down.

Wattawa by Acclamation.

Immediately following the nomination of the mayor, John Wattawa was nominated for lieutenant governor by acclamation.

Mayor Rose's Acceptance.

Mayor Rose was greeted with tumultuous applause when he made his appearance to accept the nomination for governor. Delegates sprang from their seats to grasp his hands and the mayor's face expanded to an amazing extent. It was several minutes before the mayor could deliver his speech of acceptance.

The Platform.

Following is the platform adopted by the convention:

We, the duly accredited representatives of the Democratic party of Wisconsin in convention assembled at the Madison convention hall, do hereby declare:

1. We realize that the Republican party of history has been, temporarily at least, driven from the political field in this state, and that, in this campaign, we are confronted by an organization of unprincipleless power, which has debauched and will continue to debauch the public service for the accomplishment of political and personal ends.

2. It is a matter of history that the nomination of Madison convention secured

the nomination of the state superintendent of education, a position of great importance, to a man who, at the time, was not only a member of the party, but a

Grand Rapids, Wis., Sept. 10, 1902.

The Crossing Horror.

Grand Rapids has at last been called on to witness a real crossing horror such as are enacted in different parts of the country nearly every day, where railroad crossings are allowed to go from one year's protection to another without any protection. One would think that after the fatality of last Wednesday it would not be necessary to urge the St. Paul company to protect their crossing at Cranberry street. One occasion like this should be sufficient to cause any company to take steps for their own protection as well as that of the public. It is more than a year since the city council passed an ordinance requiring the various railroad companies to put in gates at the principal crossings in the city, and notwithstanding the fact that they have been repeatedly notified to do so, no move has ever been made by the St. Paul company to comply with the ordinance. This crossing is known to be one of the worst in this part of the country. There are numerous tracks close together, and the sidings are invariably filled with cars close up to the road, so that it is impossible to see the main track when approaching from the west until one gets within a few feet of the track. The consequence is that there has been numerous narrow escapes right at this point, but heretofore luck has seemed to favor the community and there have been no accidents that amount to anything. In fact luck favored the crowd, that was struck on Wednesday evening, for had the wagon been struck square in middle, there is no question that there would have been more fatalities. The city attorney should bestir himself to see how soon he can commence suit against the company to compel them to put in gates, as he has been empowered by the council to do so some time ago and the time is certainly now ripe. The company will put in the gates in short order when it realizes that we mean business.

The Democratic Nominees.

The democrats of the state of Wisconsin have nominated their officers, and they are as good a set of men and as able to fill the positions to which they have been nominated as any that have ever been put up by any political party in the state. The republicans realize this fact as much as anybody and as a consequence some of them have been making strenuous efforts to fix up a story about some one of them that will hold water. Up to date they have failed. The Free Press of Milwaukee laments that the delegates did not nominate some other man for governor than David S. Rose. Wonder what difference it makes to the Free Press what the other fellows do? Maybe they have already begun to figure on defeat. The chances were certainly never better for electing a democratic administration in Wisconsin than they are this year, and if the democrats get out and do their duty there is no question of the results.

Announcement.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of sheriff of Wood county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention, and if nominated and elected I shall exert my best efforts to discharge the duties of the office as they should be done. Signed RICHARD SCHMIDT, Nekoosa, Wis.

Human Flesh and Horse Flesh.

In many essentials all flesh is much alike. A remedy that will cure all manner of pains, sprains, strains, bruises, scalds, cuts, bruises,
chaps, scratches, galls, chafes, sores, lameness,
wounds, inflammation and swellings occurring
in human flesh, is of equal value for like ailments
of the flesh of beasts and is useful in the household for the hurts of childhood and the ailments and ills of every day life as it is in the stable, the gymnasium or the training quarters.
Such a remedy is Greene's Infallible Liniment which is endorsed by the heads of families,
breeders, drivers, pugilists, trainers, bicyclists,
athletes—everybody, everywhere, who has used it.
In proof of this claim attention is invited to the following testimonials from:
Bob Fitzsimmons, Pugilist.
Harry Gilmore, Boxing Instructor.
W. A. Plunkerton, Detective Agency.
Thos. Earhart, Supt. F. P. Police Station.
Fred Sullivan, Trainer, M. H. T. T. T. Co.
C. R. Tipton, Horse Breeder, Cadiz, O.
"The rub-out is great stuff, I like it better than anything I ever used." Bob Fitzsimmons.
"Greene's Liniment is in use among my pupils and they agree with me as to its merits. I have no hesitancy in recommending it to athletes and trainers in general." Harry Gilmore.
"I have used Greene's Liniment for some time on my driving horses and saddle horses at home, of which I have eight, and I have also used it with great success on running horses owned by me, particularly, however, on Judge Dwyer, and I have found it of great service. I have a high opinion of your goods and shall never be without some in my stable." W. A. Plunkerton.
"I have tried Greene's Liniment and find it the best I ever used." Thos. Earhart.
"It's the best thing I ever used." F. Sullivan.
"I feel that too much cannot be said in commendation of its merits." G. R. Tipton.
These testimonials are published to induce readers to try of this truly infallible Liniment,
then of themselves they will know of its merits.
Greene's Infallible Liniment sells at 25c., 50c., and $1.00 a bottle at drug stores and by the makers, J. W. Greene & Co., 37 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill. If your druggists haven't it, order direct, but most druggists keep it or will get it for you. Accept no substitute. There is no other liniment that can take its place and do its work—no other that is like it or "just as good."
The makers to prove its worth will send a large free sample in return for this advertisement and
10c. to cover cost of mailing.

further particulars call on John Schubel at the MacKinnon factory or at residence corner of Oak and Maple
streets, west side.
The city schools now open at 1:30 p.
m. instead of 1:15 as heretofore, the change giving the children fifteen minutes more in which to secure their dinner, which is a good thing owing to the great distance that many of them have to travel.
Miss Laura Whitlock, who had spent the past two weeks with relatives and friends at Stevens Point and other places returned home on Friday
and has resumed her position as stenographer in the law office of

We are in receipt of a copy of the Amboy News, published at Amboy, Lee county, Ill., and edited by our old friend Ray Sherwood, who recently went down there to take editorial charge of the paper. The paper is a six column quarto, and seems to enjoy a good advertising patronage, and is withal a pretty good paper. We wish Ray success in his new field of labor.
Peter Moberg, one of the solid farmers of Sigel, was a pleasant caller at the Tribune office on Tuesday. Mr. Moberg stated that he had a large crop on his farm this year,
his oats being especially fine. He sowed 30 sacks and threshed 1400 bushels. Mr. Moberg also offers his five year old stallion for sale, an addition of which will be found in another column.
Tomah Journal: Mr. George Ham-brecht received the pleasing news this week from President Harper of Chicago University that he had been awarded a scholarship in the law college of that institution for the coming year. The scholarship is an honor as well as a financial benefit.
Mr. Hambrecht will go to Chicago the latter part of September to begin the course in law.
—Dress does not make the person.
Nor does a clean exterior indicate a clean interior. To be well all organs of the body must work in harmony.
Rocky Mountain Tea does this work.
Sold by Johnson & Hill Co.
George Huntington has sold his place near the Green Bay depot to H. P.
Corriveau and has bought another house on Water street that formerly belonged to the Cloutier estate. Mr.
Huntington is now living in the store building belonging to Mrs. Kuntz where he will remain until he has had time to fix up his new home, after which parties who are looking for work in the electrical line will find him in his new place ready to attend to calls in this line, or he can be found by calling up telephone No. 231.
W. H. Fitch, secretary of the Wisconsin State Strawberry Growers Association, was in the city on Sunday and Monday, being engaged in preparing the report of the recent convention of the association for publication. Mr. Fitch stated that there had been some frost down his way, the thermometer having gotten as low as 28 degrees above zero at one time, which is uncomfortably near the danger point for cranberry growers.
Mr. Fitch also had with him a new fangled berry rake which appeared to be quite an improvement over the old style of heavy rake that has been in use heretofore.
A Good Opportunity.
We have been fortunate in procuring one of the best brands of canned fruit, vegetables and preserves that can be canned in the United States which is the famous Curtice Bros. of Rochester, N. Y. We are their direct agents from the canneries and, therefore, there is no middleman's profit for you to pay, which is a saving from 10 to 20 per cent. A demonstrator will be at our store in a few days, or will call at your home if you wish.
We positively guarantee the goods to be as good as the best, with prices cheaper.
If you want a good, reliable coffee,
one that is always the same and none better to be had, then buy Monarch in 1 and 2 lb. tins at 38c. Another leader that we have, and you ought to see
the friends that it has, is the old stand
by Bunker Hill, 35c per pound, 3 lbs.
for $1.09. Our next brand is Oraz-Aba out in 2 lb. red cans and sold at 25c per pound, and nicer flavored coffee you cannot get anywhere unless you pay a great deal more money.
The last and not the least of our best brands of coffee is Gona. Here is a 25c coffee that we have sold for years at 20c per pound. If you haven't used Gona, ask your neighbor about
it. It's as good as many coffees you pay 25 and 30c for at other stores.
Arbuckles, XXXX and Lion stores at our store.
Use White Lion flour if you want the best. We want your grocery trade, for we are after it. Remember the name of the coffee: Monarch, Bunker Hill, Oraz-Aba, Gona. The best coffee sold in the city. We grind coffee by electricity. The best groceries are sold the cheapest here.

Passenger Insurance, See P.

The French Government has adopted system of passenger insurance on stat railways. The purchase of a penny ticket confers the right to $2000 in case of death or permanent injury, from $500 to $1000 for minor injuries, and 5 francs a day while the injured person is unable to work as the result of an accident of any kind within the precincts of the railway. A passenger may purchase an unlimited number of tickets up to ten.

CHAPTER V.

Captain Grant had paused sharply in a desultory ramble. There stood before him one upon whom his eyes became glued, and as he looked upon her features it could be plainly seen that he gave quite a start, though immediately after he was himself again, cool and collected.

"Who are you, girl, and what do you seek here?" he asked, somewhat haughtily.

"I am Barbara Merriles, the gypsy," replied the girl, her eager eyes first fastened upon his face wonderingly, expectantly, and then, with a disappointed expression, turning upon his hand.

Captain Grant had held his left hand behind him, seemingly in a careless manner. As yet she had not been able to catch even a glimpse of it.

"I am searching for a man," she continued.

That look betrayed him. He might disguise his features, alter his voice beyond recognition, but the eyes of hate are keener than those of love, and Barbara Merriles had seen that expression in his eyes too often to forget it. She knew him now.

"I have searched far and wide for him," she said—"the man who ruined my life, and killed my gypsy mother through his heartlessness to me. I battered myself that I would know him, no matter where or when I met him, such was my hate for him; but I was wrong. Once I thought I had found him, and only after my danger had almost taken his life did I realize my mistake and curse my blindness. The man I had followed so long was not the Roger Darrel who wrecked my life, but one to whom I owe much in the past. But my work is nearly done. The monster who wrecked my life still lives, and I have found him. Heaven be praised for this moment. Hold out your hand, fiend, secondly! Ho! the black glove! That is the last proof. Here the trail ends. For many weary months I have sought a demon in human shape, and now I have found him. You are the man!"

Her intensely black eyes were bent upon the form of the man before her, as

All the terrible wrongs of the past must have rushed over the young gypsy girl and overwhelmed her, so that she hardly knew what she was doing, save that the object that had been the dream of her life for a long time back was in a fair way of being consummated.

She would have been no mean antagonist for any man in her present condition, for the fury in her heart had made her muscles like steel. Her little frame was drawn up to its fullest extent, and such a picture of supple grace could not well be found elsewhere.

With a cry like that of an enraged animal, the gypsy girl sprang forward. She had been closed to Captain Grant, and this movement would have buried her form upon him had he remained in his old position—which he did not.

When he saw that time for action had arrived, and that the vengeful girl was coming at him like a tornado, the duelist Captain quickly stepped aside.

The movement was so abrupt that there was no time given Barbara Merriles to recover herself, and as a consequence, not meeting with the resistance she had expected in the shape of her foe, she tottered upon the very brink of the awful precipice.

Even then she might have recovered her equilibrium and saved herself, but it seemed as though it were fated she should perish, for the earth crumbled away beneath her weight, and with a sharp cry, she went down.

When hope seemed indeed lost, a ray came to her, for her hands, thrown out with a clutch of despair, fastened upon a root that jutted from the face of the cliff at its very top. There she clung, unable to help herself, hanging between life and death!

He could have saved her if he would. One exertion of his muscular power, and she would have been lifted to life. How could he have ever again attempted to slay him when this was the case?

But he was a man without a heart.

Kneeling down, he saw her face, white now from terror, the great black eyes looking up at him in a pleading way, but he even smiled sardonically, and uttering one word, "Farewell," walked a few paces away to where he could only see the small brown hands clutching the root in a death grasp. Then he turned his back upon the spot.

and fate, and something seemed to tell him that all would come out well.

So far as Barbara Merriles was concerned this had come true, for she would trouble him no more, unless her spirit could come back to haunt the man who had been the curse of her life, a thing that the Captain had no fear of.

Thus affairs were allowed to drift along in their own way, and the fatal hour drew near when the climax was to come. The young girl felt her soul recoil in horror at the thought of making a sacrifice even for her father's sake, for he had given her to understand just about how it was.

Still it was not so bad as it might have been at a former time. Her heart lay dead within her, and she could not take half the interest in matters that she might otherwise have done, but yet the idea of marriage with that man was quite enough to horrify her.

There was one, however, whose interest in her never flagged, and that person was Roger Darrel. He knew she loved him, and, if her scruples would not permit her to marry him he was at least determined that she should not be forced to marry another against her will.

There was one of the servants at the Terrace who had become aware of the love that existed between his young mistress and the master of Darrel Chase, and whom, some time previous, Roger had been in a situation to assist in a material way.

After that event Andrew had taken it upon himself to convey all that he saw and heard in reference to Miss Carol to Roger Darrel. He did not act in a mean manner, but, believing that his object was good, and that the end justified the means, he was continually on the lookout for something hinging on the case.

Thus the young master of Darrel Chase was aware of all things of importance that were transpiring at the Terrace. He learned, with great surprise and anger, of the plans that were being perfected for the speedy marriage of Carol.

Both the Captain and Lawrence Richmond would have been amazed could they have learned how much of their mutual understanding was known. Roger was quite well aware of the fact that the soldier duelist possessed a secret which he held over the head of Carol's father, and that this same secret was to be the "open sesame" to the old gentleman's treasures.

He knew that Carol hated this Captain Grant, whoever he might be, and he became firmly resolved that, if it must be the last act of his life, he would prevent the unholy marriage. Since words would be of no avail, he was ready to proceed to still stronger measures.

He remembered the story of young Lochinvar, who carried off his bride just when she was about to be married to another, and yet the cases were far from being parallel, for in this instance there was a barrier between them, and, even though he saved Carol from such a fate, it would not bring them any closer together.

Meanwhile preparations were going on at the Terrace for the wedding of Captain Grant and Carol. The young girl had not spirit enough just then to resist. Her faith in Roger was not gone, but it had received a terrible shock, and this rendered her quiescent with the numb pain that filled her heart.

The preparations were not of a magnificent nature, for it was the Captain's wish that the ceremony should be quiet. What was his object in this, he, the man so full of display and love of ostentation, they could not comprehend; but Lawrence Richmond suspected that he was afraid some one who had known him in the past might learn of his whereabouts.

Filled with this idea, the Virginian made haste to have an announcement of the coming marriage in several different papers of Washington and Richmond. With rare cunning he also contrived to have a little item go the rounds of the press in reference to a vow the soldier had made years before, to always wear his left hand covered by a black kid glove.

"If that doesn't bring the Philistines down upon him, then all is lost."

So said the master of the Terrace to himself as he read some of the notices that were in the papers, and then carefully hid the sheets away for fear the Captain should alight upon them.

Army Doctors Are Scarce.

There seems to be great reluctance on the part of young physicians to seek careers in the army, although the ranks of the profession in civil life are greatly overcrowded. Many vacancies still continue in the commissioned medical corps of the army, notwithstanding the efforts of the surgeon general to secure doctors for his branch of the service. The professional examination is more or less rigid, but to a young doctor, newly graduated, it ought not to be such an insurmountable obstacle as in many cases it seems to prove. The physician requirements are also very strict, and quite a number of applicants fail to pass this part of the examination, where they would doubtless have succeeded professionally. An assistant surgeon in the army commences his military life with the rank, pay and allowances of a captain. He receives a commission which carries with it life tenure.

Wu Appreciated the Joke.

Congressman Landis, of Indiana, was a guest the other night at a dinner given by Dr. H. B. Assistant Secretary of State, among the other guests being Minister Wu, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Patent Commissioner Allen.

During the course of the dinner Secretary Wilson began displaying his knowledge of things agricultural. "The peach," he took occasion to remark, "originally came from China."

"Indeed!" remarked Minister Wu, much interested.

"Everybody knew that," interrupted Mr. Allen. "as soon as they met Mr. Wu."

The Chinese minister laughed at the compliment until his sides shook. He knows what it is to be a "peach."

Cost Per Mile of Electric Cars.

It is figured that the cost of electric motive power per mile traveled by a car is between 3 and 4 cents.

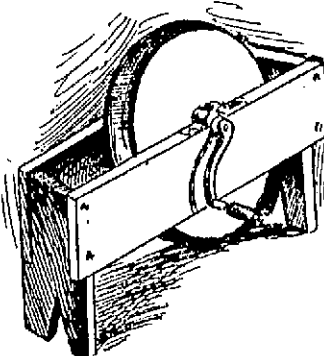

Mounting a Grindstone.

For ordinary stones, says a Farm and Home correspondent, the frame should be built 18 inches wide, 30 inches high and 36 inches long. Make the ends of 3 by 8-inch stuff and the sides of 2 by 8 inch. Plane it up nicely, bolt it securely together and give it a good coat of paint.

One can buy very good sets of grindstone irons now for 50 cents, including a mandrel roller, bearings and crank. I have one very serious objection to the common grindstone mandrel, and that is that the crank does not screw on, but has a square end, on which the crank does not fit, but flops about "any old way" and very often causes the one who is furnishing the power to bruise or skin his knuckle against the frame.

The first thing I would do with such a mandrel would be to take it to the nearest blacksmith shop, saw the square end off with a back saw, run

a drill through the square hole in the crank and make it round, run a tap through the crank and thread the end of the mandrel. By so doing you have a good, steady, easy-going crank, without any backlash. Fit a piece of wood in the square hole in the stone, find the exact center with your dividers; then bore a hole the size of the mandrel through the block. Use a piece of thick pasteboard on each side of the stone between the iron washer and the stone. Put the stone on the mandrel, observing to use the washers as above, and screw the nut up hard and fast.

Home-Made Milk-Cooler.

Where one does not have sufficient milk to have an elaborate method of keeping it cool, or where such a plan is not warranted, a substitute may be found in the homemade cooler shown this week. Secure a strong box, large enough to hold three or four cans, and line it with zinc to make it water-tight.

Have the box high enough so that the water may come to within six inches of the neck of the cans. A rack made of strong strips an inch thick and two inches wide (see Figure 3) is fitted in the bottom of the box, and another rack (see Figure 2) is fitted to the top of the box to prevent the cans from slipping over or upsetting when the box is full.

of water or when one or more cans are removed. The detail shown at Figure 2 shows how this top rack is braced at the corners.—Indianapolis News.

Treatment of Celery.

The first thing to do is to prevent rust and blight, which is readily done by spraying, and this should be done when the plants are not more than two or three inches high. Use Bordeaux mixtures applied gently while the plants are small, and make a second application when the plants are six inches high; if a third application is needed, give it regardless of the size of the plants. After the care in spraying or rather along with it comes the cultivation in part, by hand, for the weeds must be kept out of the rows at all cost. Hoeing is next in order, and the hoeing process is by far the best, for it enables the plants to get plenty of light, so as to keep up their growth. Place the boards close to the rows of plants holding them in place with stakes. After the plants grow above the height of the boards, bring the latter close together at the top, without bruising the plants, so that the space is dark and the plants will continue to grow.

Raspberry and Blackberry.

Upon the care given the plantations of raspberry and blackberry plants after fruiting largely depends the crops of the next season. Cultivation of the space between the rows and around the plants should be thorough so that the weeds may be kept in subjection and the moisture in the soil conserved that the canes may make all the growth possible. It is necessary to obtain strong, healthy and well ripened lateral growths during the growing season if the plants are to give a full crop the next season. By keeping up the cultivation the plant is kept growing and the foliage clings until cut off by the frosts in the fall; if cultivation is not done the plant, weakened perhaps by heavy fruiting, is likely to shed its leaves and the new growth of vine is subjected to the warm weather of the late summer.

Broom Corn.

Almost every family has one or more brooms in the house, and very few have any idea where the broom corn comes from, or how it came to be grown here. We may have told before, but it will bear to be repeated, that Benjamin Franklin picked the first seed that were ever planted here from an imported broom, and sent them to a lady friend to be planted. In 1839 the State of Illinois had 95,137 acres in broom corn, and produced 60,855,520 pounds, valued at $2,357,066 in the hands of the growers. Kansas had 34,383 acres, and the product was 11,813,310 pounds, worth $458,481. Oklahoma had 12,366 acres and a crop of 3,118,180 pounds, worth $120,813, and Missouri with 10,219 acres had 3,093,930 pounds, worth $159,990. It will be seen that the largest acreage does not always produce the largest crop or the most money. Texas had 3,743 acres and a crop of 1,638,150 pounds, worth $60,313; Arkansas 879 acres, producing 304,600, worth $12,558, and Indian Territory, 397 acres, with 147,020 pounds, worth $7,018. There are amounts grown in other States that bring the total crop up to 90,947,370 pounds in 1890, and that was thought a short year, though the yield was probably less in 1890. California, Iowa, Nebraska and Tennessee are among the other States producing broom corn. The value of the broom corn crop averages about $80 per ton, or $20 an acre.

Low Farm Wagons.

An enormous amount of force is wasted in loading material into high farm wagons. It is fortunate that this truth is being discovered and lower gears are put into use. This sketch shows a convenient low farm wagon, commodious and light, but strong enough to make hauling a very easy matter. The long body has a truss under it to support the middle, the chain being attached well under the body at the front, to avoid the wheels in turning. Side and end pieces can be put upon such a body and a wagon box made if needed. Let the wheels be not only low, but let them have broad rims, so they will not cut into the land when

Government Whitewash.

The United States government uses a whitewash mainly on lighthouses, that is brilliant and durable. Considerable whitewash ought to be used on the farm. Poultry houses may be covered with it inside and out, and it may be used to advantage on fences. The recipe is as follows: Slake one-half bushel of quicklime with boiling water, covering it as soon as the water is applied. When slaked strain it and add a peck of salt, dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice that has previously been boiled in boiling water to a thin paste, half a pound of Spanish whiting and one pound of clean glue, which has been dissolved in warm water, mix well together and let stand for several days. The wash should be applied hot, using a brush or making it sufficiently thin so that it may be applied by a spraying pump.

To Stop a Sucking Cow.

To stop a sucking cow take a piece of half inch basswood six inches long and four inches wide and cut into the shape shown in picture. Put this in her nose. If she does not stop, put sharp nails in, as indicated by dots. If she is cute enough to mink herself ANTISUCKING BOARD.

with the nails in, then put on a halter and a suregule. Fasten a stiff hardwood stick on each side from halter to suregule, placing the suregule of course just back of the fore legs. If she is so determined to suck herself that she will throw herself with this harness, I should feed her abundantly upon fat forming foods and visit the butcher.—Rural New Yorker.

Garden Hints.

When getting the window boxes and garden urns ready use good, fresh soil. Nothing is gained, and much may be lost, by economizing in the matter of earth.

If the violets and other spring and autumn bloomers show signs of wither or mold because of too much rain, cut off close to the ground immediately. The plants will find it easier to make renewed growth than to recover from this creeping and insidious disease.

After all, the scarlet geranium can scarcely be surpassed as a garden standard. It can be set out at any time, and a number of good geraniums will yet save the summer's happiness for the flower lovers whose treasures have suffered from the unusual weather. Let them buy red geraniums and be comforted with vivid bloom.

FINDS STRANGE ANIMAL.

LA CROSSE MAN FINDS NEST OF UNKNOWN SPECIES IN WELL.

Shape of Animal Resembles a Miniature Hippopotamus with Legs Cut Off Near the Body.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Hert Student, employed by Thill & Lutz of this city, yesterday ran out a nest of animals, the name of which no local student of the animal science has yet been able to tell. The animals were found down a well which he was repairing.

The premises are in the eastern portion of the city. When he took the boards off the top he noticed a strange animal clinging to the pump. He promptly knocked it off, when he discovered others, and his curiosity becoming aroused, he captured one and put it in alcohol. The specimen captured is about three or four inches long, cream color with black markings about a quarter of an inch long all over the body. In shape the animal resembles a miniature hippopotamus with its legs sawed off close to the body. From the large mouth two forks of a spindly tongue protrude and with this the animal feels its way about. It has no eyes at all, indicating that it is a species that lives in caves or other dark places. It is of a consistence very like gum, and damp. Just what the animal is and how it got there is a mystery, for it is evidently miles from its regular place to above.

There has always been a mystery connected with the well where the animals were found. There can be felt at times on hot days gusts of fresh, cold air which evidently come from the interior of the earth. The air is damp and there is a sound of running water heard through the loose sand at the bottom. It is in the populous eastern portion of town.

WIFE OF SPARTA JUDGE STRICKEN AT A SOCIAL.

Was Taken Ill at Mayor Gross' Residence and Expired Several Hours Later.

Sparta, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. H. E. Kelly, wife of Justice Kelly, was stricken with apoplexy yesterday at 6 o'clock while attending a social at the residence of Mayor Gross. She was taken home and died at midnight. Deceased was one of Sparta's foremost ladies in social and church circles and a stepmother to Edgar Kelly, the celebrated musician and composer. The funeral will be held Monday.

Mrs. Thomas O'Connor, aged 65 years, an old resident of Sparta, died last night after a lingering illness of cancer of the stomach. The husband and two sons survive. The funeral will be held Monday.

KILLED BY LIVE WIRE.

Albert Jacob, a Deloit Telephone Line-man, Meets Instant Death While at Work.

Deloit, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Albert T. Jacob, aged about 25, residing at Deloit, Wisconsin, and employed by the Wisconsin Telephone Company, was instantly killed this afternoon by a live wire, which was crossed with the Deloit, Rockford & Janesville Electric Railway Company.

BETTER FIRE PROTECTION.

Steps Being Taken for Larger Water Supply at Green Bay.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—A matter of better fire protection has again been taken up by the larger mill and factory owners of this city and an effort is being made to compel the Green Bay Water Company to give the city the required amount of water for use in the time of fire which is not being done at the present time. A meeting was called last evening by the owners of the large factories and mills of this city at which time they discussed the water system and will compel the water company to give them the proper fire protection.

The waterworks plant in this city has been in poor condition for the past year and the city is not safe if a large fire should break out as the required pressure cannot be given the fire department.

OSHKOSH GIRL SUICIDES.

Objection of Parents to Her Keeping Company with Man the Cause.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 6.—Clara Oehler, the 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Anna Oehler, committed suicide at her home Thursday evening by taking carbolic acid. According to Fred Rehensdorf, of Fond du Lac, who is visiting his mother, the family were sitting in the sitting room when the girl went upstairs to her room. She was not seen again until about 9 o'clock, when found lying on the bed. The cause for the girl's act is said to be the opposition of her family to her keeping company with Bert Hunter. The girl had been infatuated with the young man, but her family did not approve of her choice.

INSANE WANDERER IS FOUND.

Chicago Woman, a Follower of Dowd, is Located at Kenosha.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 6.—Mrs. H. Drews, who has been missing from her home at 426 Fulton street, Chicago, for several weeks, has been located at Hotel Kenosha in this city. The woman is demented and it is thought that her mental troubles have resulted from her zeal in seeking converts to John Alexander Dowd and his religion. After considerable labor the police managed to discover the friends of the woman in Chicago. She was taken there last evening.

CORN CROP IS BACKWARD.

Farmers are Worried Over the Condition of the Grain.

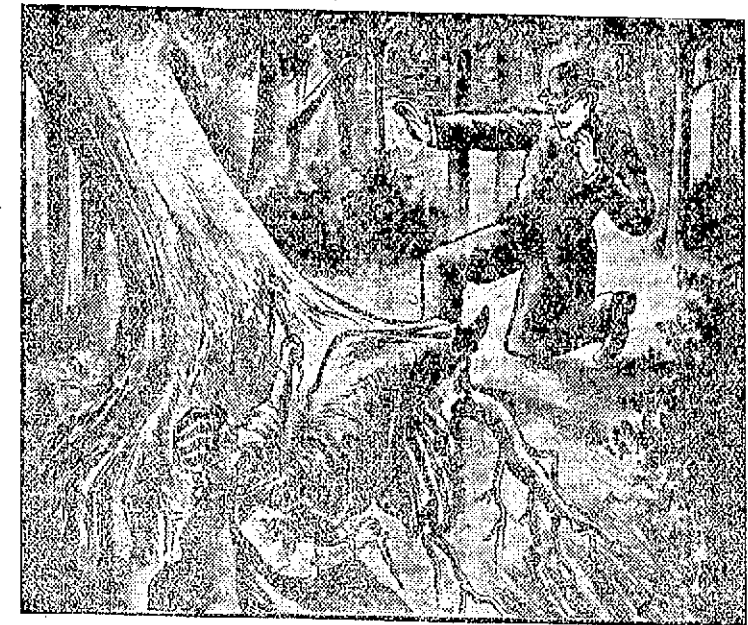

Mainfield, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Farmers over Adams, Wood and Waukesha counties are worried over their corn crop which is the last backward in many years, much of the corn needing two weeks of good warm weather to fully mature it. The past two weeks have been cool and the corn is not doing much if any and the weather has indications of frost, which would ruin the corn crop. A light frost was reported this morning on the low lands.

Mound Conceals a Big Cave.

Vernon, Wis., Sept. 6.—Excavations made on the Nicolai farm near here have revealed a big cave under a mound. In the cave are many Indian relics. Skeletons were also found, as were a number of Indian records.

Kills Himself in Green Bay Jail.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 6.—Christie Ribbie was in the county jail yesterday morning for thirty days for vagrancy. Not long after he committed suicide by taking carbolic acid and was found dead on a couch in the jail when dinner was taken to her.

THERE SHE CLUNG BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH.

though she would scorch him with the fire that was contained in them, while her right hand was raised, and the dexter finger pointed at her enemy as if she would send a poisoned dart to his heart.

"Yes, you are the man, the fiend, the demon who destroyed my peace. Deny it if you dare!"

The man laughed sneeringly.

"I have no choice left me, only to protest against the endearing adjectives you apply to my poor self. If you ask me plainly, am I the man who once thought he loved you, and, finding out his mistake, deserted you rather than remain and bring you to more pain, I answer, I am he."

"Then you have pronounced your doom. Among the peaks of the Pyrenees I made my terrible vow to hunt you down to the death, even if it took years to accomplish it, and I have never forgotten that vow in the long time that has elapsed since then. I knew that fate would bring us face to face again, and time has proven how wise I was in my belief."

The keen stiletto of the gypsy girl flashed in the sunlight. To many a man the sight would have been one full of horror, for the Captain stood so close to the edge of a precipice that it seemed as though a touch would send him over, and the enraged girl was half-crouched, ready to fly at him like a panther.

Not a nerve of his frame trembled, and yet he knew full well his danger. At such a time every faculty was needed to save himself, and the soldier could not afford to give way to trembling. He even smiled in her face.

"I see you are like a tiger cat, and seek my life. Before you go a step farther I wish to warn you, girl, that the consequences will fall upon your own head. For the last time, Barbara, beware. If you come on, it will be to your death."

His face changed with the rapidity of lightning, and in place of the sneering smile had come a savage look, while his brow was corrugated and his eyes flashed like little lightnings.

"You waste your breath, Roger Darrel; false lover, base fiend! Here I am, resolved to avenge the past, and it is just as well for you, as I would never leave you in peace as long as I lived. Here is Barbara Merriles' blow for revenge!"

He saw that nothing he could say or do would keep her back; for the time being she was crazed with fury, and would have leaped at him had she known that certain death lay beyond, but neither by look nor movement did he let her see that he feared her.

CRANMOOR.

The W. H. Fitch family and guests spent a day last week at Nekoosa and vicinity, inspecting the plant of the Nekoosa Paper Co. and enjoying sights and scenes along the river. On Sunday they attended church at Nekoosa.

Cranberry picking is in full blast this week and although carloads of pickers have arrived, the supply is not yet equal to the demand. The temperature is still so low that heavy frosts are imminent.

Mr. Mrs. and Miss Galligan and Miss Nellie Young of Nekoosa were visiting some of the marshes Monday to see the cranberry in its native bog and witness the picking of the fruit.

The large new warehouse of the Arpin Co. is up, enclosed and shingled. Work is being pushed fast as possible to have the use of the building this season.

Mrs. Chas. Farrar and son, Jerome, of St. Louis arrived Sunday morning for a visit with her sister, Mrs. W. H. Fitch, and the other members of the family.

George Silverthorn returned to Wausau Saturday evening after a visit of some length with his friend, J. W. Fitch.

Miss Dorothy Fitch went to Nekoosa on the morning train Monday to care for her brother who was taken suddenly ill.

Miss Amelia Klinge of Vesper went home Saturday morning, returning Sunday for the cranberry picking.

Charles, Eddie and Miss Myra Kruger are at home this week, helping out during the busy season.

Miss Kittie Cahill accompanied Harriet Whittlesey home from Walker Thursday evening last.

Miss Cora Grimshaw is at home again and is one of the assistants at the Arpin marsh.

Chas. S. Whittlesey was a home visitor over Sunday.

Notice.

—The following notice appeared in the Jacksonville, Ill., Courier on March 15, 1902, and will be of interest to many people in this vicinity. Mr. Noah Wellman of Peoria, Ill., for the past fifteen years a trusted employee of the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville Railroad Co., says: "I have tried different cough remedies and have never found any to be equal to Hart's Honey and Horehound for the cure of coughs, and would not be without it at hand. The children like the pleasant taste of Hart's Honey and Horehound and a trial will convince anyone of the special merit of this medicine." Large bottles twenty-five and fifty cents. Sold by Sam Church, druggist.

BABCOCK.

Quite a number of our townsmen left today to attend the state fair. Among those who went were W. F. Noltner, Wm. Remington, Henry Grier, Rudolph Haas and John Close.

G. W. Lyons has been very busy the past week, marking and arranging a nice line of fall and winter goods to supply the wants of his many customers.

Miss Nellie Addleman gave a very enjoyable dancing party to a few of her friends on Wednesday evening.

Miss Libbie Grier of Lodi is spending a few days visiting at the home of her brother, Henry Grier.

Mrs. Will Johnson of Tomah was the guest of Mrs. Baker a few days the past week.

Mrs. W. J. Sullivan and daughter, Lizzie, returned from Chicago Saturday morning.

Mrs. E. J. Erickson and daughter, Edna, of Sau Prairie are visiting at Thos. Laws.

Mrs. G. W. Lyons was a visitor in Grand Rapids for a couple of days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ingraham of Daly were shopping in town on Monday.

The hunters report prairie chickens very scarce this year in this vicinity.

Water Cure for Chronic Constipation.

—Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of outdoor exercise—walk, ride drive. Make a regular habit of this and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of medicine. When a purgative is required take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

BIRON.

Miss Inez Moody and Miss Mabel Horton of Stevens Point visited over Sunday with Mrs. A. Faust, returning to the Point on the Monday morning train.

Miss Nettie Akey left last Saturday for Milwaukee for a few weeks' visit, where she will attend the state fair.

Owen Laughlin spent the past week in Grand Rapids in attendance at the bedside of his son Frank.

Mrs. Thornton and daughters, Dora and Hannah, left for the cranberry marsh on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Akey were visiting with Frank Barrett, west side, Sunday.

Jim Klappa and family departed for Milwaukee to take in the fair.

J. H. Noyes has re-shingled A. Kempfert's farm house lately.

A. Kempfert took a ride to the Scott farm Sunday.

Josh Westhafer, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralysis. It is for sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

RUDOLPH.

On Monday morning at 8:59 at the Catholic church, Rev. Van Sever officiating, occurred the marriage of two of Rudolph's most popular young people, the contracting parties being Carl Omholt, son of John Omholt, and Miss Rosa Sharkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Sharkey. Wilfred Sharkey and Miss Maud Sharkey, brother and cousin of the bride, acted as best man and bridesmaid. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride, where a bounteous dinner was served. In the evening a social hop was given in Logan's hall, where a large crowd of friends and relatives of the newly married couple spent a most delightful evening in dancing. Refreshments were also served. Mr. and Mrs. Omholt will make their home in Grand Rapids and their many friends here wish them a happy journey through life.

Andrew King of Grand Rapids, representing the E. F. U., was in the city the first of the week looking for candidates. He met with good success. A week ago Saturday nine ladies were taken into the order here and they are coming right to the front.

Mr. and Mrs. B. St. Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. G. Barber of Merrill and B. Sharkey had dinner Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. Akey and Mr. and Mrs. G. Frechette at Grand Rapids.

Miss Maggie Lawson of Seymore and Miss Nettie Hansen of Port Edwards were the guests of Miss Mary Meyer over Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Laura LaVaque was in Grand Rapids last Thursday having some dental work done.

Mrs. Paul Fontaine departed for Massachusetts Saturday to visit her parents.

Della Lyonais spent Sunday in Green Bay, the guest of her sister.

Pleasant to the Taste.

—One of the most important requirements in a medicine to be given to small children should be that it is pleasant to the taste. Bad tasting medicines disturb the stomach, destroy the appetite and it is extremely difficult to get children to take them. The pleasant flavor of Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup the certain cure for dyspepsia, constipation, and biliousness, pleases the most sensitive persons and is the ideal laxative for young children. Sold by Sam Church Druggist.

LONG-SIGHT OR HYPERMETROPIA.

The normal eye is always round like an orange. In this defect the diameter of the eye is too short from front to rear. People with this deformity are generally born that way and it stays with them to the grave. It is usually called long sight not because the person can see first rate at a distance perhaps but because they can see much better than they can close by. School children with this defect, and you will meet them quite often, on account of the prolonged use of the eye in reading and study suffer much from fatigue. Headaches, blurring and smarting of the eyes, and a long train of unpleasant symptoms can be perfectly corrected if properly fitted with glasses.

CROSSING HORROR.

ONE MAN KILLED, TWO HURT.

Wagon Load of Men is Struck While Crossing St. Paul Tracks With Fatal Result to One of Them.

Last Wednesday evening about ten minutes after six a wagon load of men who were returning home from work at the mill of the Grand Rapids lumber company were struck by a car on the St. Paul road, the accident resulting in the death of Hiram Rouse and the injury of Frank Laughlin and Albert Zermow.

The men were bound east and were moving at a good gait. Their team had just crossed the track and as the wagon got on the track a box car loomed up before them and the next instant struck the back wheels of the rig.

The box car was being pushed by an engine which was doing some switching. On the box car sat one brakeman and the conductor of the train. The brakeman was nearest the rig, but it all happened so suddenly that he was not able to give much of a description of the affair. He stated that he saw one of the men jump off from the wagon and an instant afterward the car struck him, but from where he sat he could not tell whether he went under the car or what became of him.

The engineer started after the accident that the car did not strike the wagon at all, but that he thought it ran into a telephone pole near the track, caused by the horses shying to one side. The wagon did strike the telephone pole, being thrown against it by the collision with the car.

Frank Laughlin, who was severely injured by a contusion in the side and numerous bruises about the head and body, stated that the first he knew was seeing the box car loom up before them, and that was all he knew of the affair until he came to in the wagon in which he was being carried to the doctor to have his wounds dressed. Since the accident he has been at the Commercial hotel and is gradually recovering.

Hiram Rouse, the man who was killed, was dragged down the track past the water tank, and his head was crushed in horrible shape and was dead when picked up. He had apparently been struck by the car and thrown to the ground, then the car passed over him, and his clothes caught in the brake beam and he was dragged along the ground and his life bruised out on the ties. Had his clothes not caught on the car it is entirely probable that he would have been ground beyond human semblance by the locomotive.

The only other man on the rig who was hurt seriously was Albert Zermow. He had one leg broken in two places, and sustained numerous smaller bruises about the body, which while more or less painful, will not inconvenience him when he recovers from his broken bones. He is reported to be recovering as rapidly as can be expected under the circumstances.

Several persons who were coming up and across the track state that the whole thing occurred so quick that they hardly had time to see how it was done, but they are all positive in their statements that the car struck the wagon and dashed it over against the telephone pole. They also saw Rouse as he jumped from the wagon and state that he was unable to recover his feet upon striking the ground, but staggered for an instant and before he had gained his balance the car struck him and rolled him over and over beneath the brake beam. When the car was stopped the body was found to be wedged beneath the structure and it was with great difficulty that it was removed.

Upon learning of the disaster Justice Getts impelled a coroner's jury which viewed the remains and then took an adjournment until Monday in order to secure all the witnesses possible, that the testimony bearing on the case might be complete.

At nine o'clock on Monday morning the coroner's jury met again and the examination of witnesses commenced. There were a large number examined, including the trainmen, parties who had witnessed the accident and men who occupied the wagon. The majority of the latter were unable to give a very clear version of what happened, as those who had remained on the wagon when the shock came were either rendered insensible or else shaken up so that they could not state just what had occurred or else had not seen anything of it and the first they knew was when they found themselves flying through the air. Those who had seen the car coming in time to get off the wagon had only made their escape by a very close margin, and generally by the time they had struck the ground and recovered their equilibrium enough to look about them the wagon had been struck and was out of sight on the other side of the car. One of the occupants of the wagon testified to having jumped off on the west side of the track and as he turned around he saw the car strike the wagon, but had seen no more of the accident until he noticed the body of a man being rolled over beneath the car.

All the occupants of the wagon testified that they had left the mill yard on the walk, and that after getting beyond the lumber sheds the team had been urged to a slow trot, at which rate they continued until the track was reached and the wagon struck. They also stated they had heard no bell or other noise that would be calculated to warn them that an engine was approaching, although none of them could swear that a bell had not been rung, they simply being positive that they had not heard anything of the kind.

to the effect that he had got a signal to stop and at the same time had seen the wagon on the track and had applied the brakes, but that an instant afterward he saw the wagon clear the track and supposing that they had cleared the car he turned on steam again, but had been told that there was a man under the car and had immediately stopped the engine, by which time they had reached the vicinity of the water tank. He gave it as his opinion that the car had not struck the wagon at all.

The brakeman who sat near the end of the car stated that when the wagon appeared in front of the train he had given the signal to stop but that he did not know whether the engineer was able to see the signal from where he was. He had also seen a man jump onto the track from the wagon and supposed that was the man that had been run down by the train.

Among the witnesses called was Roy Getts. He testified that he had been returning from work about six o'clock or shortly after, and that when he reached the St. Paul track he heard a locomotive bell ringing. Looking to the north where the noise came he saw the engine coming with one car ahead of it. He was riding a bicycle at the time and seeing that he had time to get across the track he increased his speed and continued on his way. After crossing the track he saw the team and wagon load of men coming and as he passed them he says that he waved his handkerchief at them at the same time crying out and warning them that a train was right at the crossing. He stated that he was only four feet from the wagon when he shouted this warning, and that he heard some one on the wagon say to hurry and they would get across. After passing the wagon he stated that he stopped his wheel and leaning it against a telephone pole looked back just in time to see the box car strike a man who was in the middle of the track.

The men on the wagon swore without exception that they saw nobody on a wheel, nor did they hear anybody yell or wave a handkerchief at them. Mr. Getts stated that to the best of his knowledge the train was moving about four or five miles an hour.

The taking of the evidence occupied all of Monday and Tuesday with the assistance of a stenographer, and a large number of witnesses were examined, the testimony being all in at six o'clock on Tuesday night.

The coroners jury met again on Tuesday evening and after considering the evidence as submitted, brought in the following verdict, which is given in full:

An inquisition taken at the city of Grand Rapids in the county of Wood and state of Wisconsin on the 9th day of September, 1902, before W. H. Getts, one of the justices of the peace of the said county upon the view of the body of Hiram E. Rouse there dead, by the jurors whose names are hereunto subscribed, who being duly sworn to inquire on behalf of this state, when in what manner, and by what means the said Hiram E. Rouse came to his death, upon their oath do say: That the said Hiram E. Rouse came to his death on the 3rd day of September, 1902, at the city of Grand Rapids, in Wood county, Wisconsin, in the yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company at a point where the track of said company crosses Cranberry street in said city, by being run over by a Chicago & Northwestern box car numbered 36754, driven by engine number 653 belonging to the said Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company with E. C. Boyer as conductor and A. J. Lambert as engineer. That the said Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company and said E. C. Boyer, conductor, and said A. J. Lambert, engineer are in part responsible for the death of said Hiram E. Rouse. We further find that the engineer, Alex Gackowski, and others, who were riding on the wagon which was struck by said box car were also in part responsible for the death of said Hiram E. Rouse. In testimony whereof the said justice of the peace and the said jurors of this inquest have hereunto set their hands the day and year aforesaid.

W. H. Getts, Justice of the peace.
T. J. Cooper, S. L. Brooks, Joseph Vincent, Nate Anderson, Charles S. Whittlesey, Philip Sheridan Jesmier, jurors.

Bought Standing Pine

A dispatch from Duluth says that Alger Smith & Co., through the vice-president, Mr. John Miller, of Duluth, have sold their standing pine in the Pigeon River district of Canada, together with camps, horses and improvements, on the Pigeon and Arrow rivers to the Pigeon River Lumber Co. of Port Arthur. The consideration is withheld, but it is said to involve six figures. Alger, Smith & Co. will hereafter confine their logging operations to the United States.

Alger, Smith & Co. have conducted logging operations on the Pigeon river in Canada for the past three years. The logs were rafted from the mouth of the river to the head of lakes to be sawed. The company has expended in the neighborhood of $75,000 in improvements on the river and for sorting grounds the Pigeon river is said to be in fine shape for log driving purposes at present—Times Journal, Fort William, Ont.

NEW LIGHT COMPANY

LOCAL MEN ARE INTERESTED

Have Bought Plant at Watertown, Which They Will Operate—Other Items of Interest.

During the past week a deal has been consummated by which P. L. Utley, T. A. Taylor and William Scott of this city have become interested in the electric light plant at Watertown.

These three gentlemen in company with capitalists at Watertown have purchased the electric light plant in that city and organized a company under the name of the Watertown Electric Light company, and the new company will operate the plant for the purpose of furnishing light and power to the citizens of that place.

The purchase includes a water power at that place amounting to about 100 horse power which will be used to assist in operating the plant. The electric light plant in its present condition is an antiquated affair of about 225 horse power, which is entirely insufficient to supply the city with the light wanted, and it is the intention of the new owners to improve and bring it up to date and enlarge the capacity enough so that the city can be supplied both with power and light and do it at a cost that will make it possible for a great deal more current to be used.

Mr. Utley is now in Watertown looking after some business matters connected with the new company, and as soon as a new man can be obtained to take charge of the plant here he will go to Watertown, where he will have business management of the new company. As Watertown is a good sized city where there is a fair demand for both light and power there is no reason why the new venture should not prove a financial success.

Jack the Hugger.—Some of our young ladies report that this city has within its confines a genuine "Jack, the Hugger," and several of the girls state that they have already been hugged. Details are meagre, but one girl who was hugged claims that it was the worst she ever experienced. Just what she meant by this is not known, but it is supposed that the fellow hugged her in rather a haphazard manner and did not pay attention to the little details that are the most essential features of an affair of this sort. Whether the young lady had had sufficient experience to pass proper judgment as to the merits of an affair of this kind is also not known. One young lady who was asked what she would do in case she were hugged, stated that she would stand still and scream. So far as can be learned none of the other girls have screamed.

Picking Cranberries.—A number of the cranberry men began picking their early berries last Monday morning, the threatening aspect of the weather having induced them to start a trifle earlier than they had at first intended. The remainder will probably start in without exception next Monday. Some growers report a scarcity of pickers, while others report that they have had more applications than they could attend to. All report a good crop and the only thing to be feared now is a frost hard enough to freeze the berries.

Melons are Late.—Many persons who have been in the habit of regaling themselves with the melons from the farm of Frank Whitrock have been disappointed up to the present writing. He has had some melons ripen this season but the process has been so slow that he has not been able to bring any to town, as the demand right at the farm has been more than he can accommodate, and on Sunday last a large number of would-be purchasers were turned away, the demand having exhausted the supply early in the day.

Had Much Trouble.—After many set backs and much extra work Joseph Cohen got started on his sea wall on Saturday, and since that time fairly good progress has been made. In order to keep the cofferdam free from water it has been necessary to operate the steam pump night and day. The water in the river had been excessively low until the work was started on this wall, since which time it has been at quite a respectable height.

Some Nice Vegetables.—About the best exhibit of vegetables that was sent to the state fair from this section was done by James Gibson, who raised the truck in his garden in this city. The lot consisted of several cabbages weighing from 28 to 32 pounds, some fine potatoes, beets, carrots, etc. The vegetables made a very nice showing and were certainly fine specimens.

Saved his Thumb.—Peter Latus, who is employed in the Oberbeck Furniture factory, cut a bad gash in his thumb on Monday by getting it in contact with one of the saws. The wound was dressed by a surgeon and he will probably be able to continue his work in the near future.

Will Start Jewelry Store.—A. F. Roach of Washburn arrived in the city the fore part of the week and intends opening up a jewelry store here. He has rented a part of the LeBreche building on the east side which he will use temporarily until a more favorable location can be secured.

Lost an Eye.—Fred, the son of August Korth of the town of Rudolph, suffered the loss of his right eye on Thursday of last week. He was working about a steam thrasher when the belt broke and struck him over the eye, tearing away the eyebrow and ruining the sight of the eye.

Hunters Galore.—County Clerk Renne has issued up to date 625 hunters licenses. As all of these are for the hunting of small game it is hardly any wonder that there was a sudden thinning out of the prairie chickens after the first few days of the open season.

Marriage Licenses.—The county clerk has granted the following marriage licenses during the past week: Mike McNamee and Clara Brandt, both of Marshfield. James J. Parkes and Rosa Smith, both of Marshfield.

Rose for Governor.

David S. Rose of Milwaukee was nominated for governor at the democratic convention held in Milwaukee last Wednesday, receiving 335 votes on the first ballot. Burr W. Jones was the next in number of votes received. The remainder of the ticket nominated was as follows:

For Secretary of State—Louis A. Lange of Fond du Lac.
For State Treasurer—Edward L. Luckow of Baraboo.
For Attorney General—Olaf R. Skaar of La Crosse.
For Railroad Commissioner—William E. Redner of Ashland.
For Insurance Commissioner, Wm. Ferber of New London.
For Superintendent of Public Instruction—Karl Mathie of Waubesa.
The convention was a most harmonious one and there were noticeable among the delegates many who have not been identified with the party for several years past on account of differences of opinion on certain planks of the democratic platform. There seemed to be the greatest desire to pull together, and there was not a candidate for nomination who had not expressed his determination to turn in and help whoever the choice of the convention should be.

That the ticket nominated by the democrats is a strong one is admitted by all who are broad minded enough to size up the matter without bias, and the general statement made by men who have canvassed the situation to any extent is that the election will be a close one, and that it will be any man's race until the votes are counted, with the odds a trifle in favor of the democratic nominee.

Mr. Rose started out on his campaign on Tuesday morning and the chances are that there will be an active campaign continued until election day.

New Furnaces in High School.

The school commissioners held a meeting last Thursday evening and among the other business transacted they decided to put a new set of furnaces in the Howe High school.

It was the intention to repair the old furnaces in the school, but when they had been torn down they were found to be in such bad shape that it would have been criminal carelessness to attempt to use them any longer. Several great cracks were found in the furnaces, and it was considered by those who examined them that all that saved the building from burning was the fact that there is an excellent draft at the school which carried everything up the chimney instead of allowing it to stop on the way.

Three furnaces will be put in to replace the two taken out, as the two that were in were badly burned out on account of their having been crowded in the attempt to heat the building properly. The new furnaces will have a five-foot fan in connection which will drive the heat about the building instead of allowing it to work by gravity as heretofore.

The new furnaces will cost about $2,000 and it was not the intention of the school board to replace the apparatus at this time, but the condition it was found to be in compelled the change at once. It is the intention to have the new apparatus in by the 20th of September.

Charged With Forgery

L. G. Torrence was arrested at Babcock on Sunday night on a charge of forgery by Sheriff McLaughlin and brought to this city and lodged in jail. It is claimed that Torrence wrote an order for five dollars and signed the name of Charles Low at the bottom, and presented the order to G. W. Lyons, asking him to cash it. After doing so Mr. Lyons became suspicious of the matter and happened to meet Mr. Low the same afternoon he interviewed him on the subject, when he discovered that the order was a forgery. The sheriff was immediately telephoned for and he went down on the evening train and landed his man without a hitch.

While out hunting on Sunday Fred Mosher received a charge of bird shot in his anatomy that surprised him somewhat for a few minutes. He was out in company with his brother William and Henry Ebert and they became separated and Mr. Ebert took a shot at some game and as Fred happened to be behind some brush in the line of fire, he got a part of the charge. He was struck in both arms and the body, but suffered no inconvenience from the accident after the pellets had been extracted by a surgeon.

—Washington Star.

The doctor's story is anonymous. So it shall remain, so far as I am concerned.

It has to do with an Englishman, and as there are some 40,000,000 of them (as Carlyle pointed out) you are not likely to guess who he is. The fact that he is a poet will not help you much, for all

Englishmen are poets at heart.

On the Quai de Paris in Rouen is a comfortable inn where the doctor put up on an automobile tour. He was called to attend a fellow guest who had been taken ill. There were two rooms, a bedroom and parlor, opening on the river.

From one room to the other a little square-built, black-visaged man was walking to and fro, barefooted, dressed in pajamas.

"What seems to be the matter?" the doctor asked in his best professional manuever.

At that moment a worried and earnest woman came from the bedroom, saying the physician's bald head and his umbrella she knew at once that he was an intelligent man; she said:

"Oh, it's you, the doctor? I'm so glad.

My husband is quite ill. He has been ill for months. And he won't take advice. Indeed, he never will take advice.

But we had heard of you and so I thought—"

"But, madam," said the doctor, edging in a word, always the little black visaged man walked to and fro on his bare feet.

"He is no better—we've traveled everywhere—he can't sleep—in England it was just the same thing, and here it is worse

—and he can't work. Why, for months—"

"Madam, permit me—"

"Months and months," said the lady;

"and it is just the same whether we stay at home or whether we travel—and the house is just as quiet! Why, when he wants to work no one dares to breathe—

and the children never are allowed upstairs—because now he has his study up stairs—and if there's a ring at the bell

we never let anyone in—we spent two weeks at Amiens, but he was no better—

and, of course, we had to leave the children at home, and you know what servants—"

"The lady talked on; the little barefooted man went back into some dark corner of the bedroom; the doctor sat down at the table and wrote a prescription.

"Send and have this made up," said

the doctor.

"Thank you, doctor, and I do hope—"

"Madam, if you will take five drops of cross, and said: "Oh, hurry up! When you wash me you just remind me of papa preaching—you just go on and on, and never know when to quit!" Helen, who is three years younger, and very fond of her papa, thought to come to his rescue, so she said: "I like to hear papa preach. Soon as he begins I lay down and go to sleep."

"What do you think of my poem?" inquired the youthful aspirant of a medical friend.

"They betray an astonishing ignorance of anatomy," was the reply.

"But they're not supposed to be scientific, you know."

"That may be the case, but it affords no excuse for your saying they 'spring from an aching heart,' when it is so apparent that they proceed from a deranged liver."

Jim Hendricks, an uncomplaining and fairly industrious citizen of a little Vermont town, had made the mistake early in life of marrying a shiftless woman.

"She never complained. She was the wife of his youth, and he loved her with the love that came to him."

"Jennie," he said one day, in his affectionate, apologetic manner, "I wish you'd sew the buttons on my coat; there's two off."

"She sighed as people who work seldom sigh. She was a poor creature, always sigh when work is thrust upon her."

In a day or two Jim approached her when she seemed especially at leisure. "The last button off my coat, Jennie. Won't you sew 'em on?"

But she did not. He said nothing, and went the next day to a tailor. "There there, come a day when he felt it was his right to impose on her again."

"Jennie, all the buttons are off my workin' shirts. Won't you fix 'em?"

She was ill for a day or two after that, so it was a week before he was cruel enough to mention the matter again. Finally he summoned up all his selfishness, and said, timidly:

"Jennie, I know you ain't well, but all the buttons are off my undershirt, and I wish you'd put the buttons on my coat."

"No, on your shirt, do you mean?"

SHOWER OF STONES.

Curious Feature in the St. Vincent Eruption.

In the Century Prof. Russell prints the following bit of personal observation among his conclusions concerning the West Indian eruptions:

The distribution of hot material discharged from La Soufriere in a belt across the island of St. Vincent, instead of over a V-shaped area as at Martinique, seemed to have an intimate connection with the position of the crater near the summit of La Soufriere and the influence of the trade winds on the distribution of the material discharged from it.

As is well known, the depth of the layer of the atmosphere affected by the trade winds is comparatively shallow, and above it the air is moving from west to east. The stones and dust shot upward from La Soufriere rose through the trade-wind layer, and were carried eastward by the upper air current. On falling, however, they again met the influence of the westward-blowing trades and were given a slant in a westward direction sufficient to allow them to pass through windows and enter houses. The windows of some of the houses near Georgetown which face eastward have the appearance of an abandoned house which has served as a target for stones, while the westward-facing windows, of those looking toward the volcano, are but little injured.

EATING AT NIGHT.

Nourishment that One Can Safely Take Before Retiring.

This question of a nightcap is one that no woman should ignore. The practice of going to sleep on an empty stomach is a poor one. Nothing brings the lines quicker, nothing so deepens them, nothing so soon makes bags under the eyes, nothing more surely brings the drawn look about the lips than the habit of going to sleep when hungry.

It is always easy to get something to eat at night, no matter how late it may be. In these days of chasing dishes with gas attachments and of little arrangements that sit upon a burner, what woman cannot heat water, and how easy it is to add to it some of the best tea extracts that come, well prepared, or put in some of the preparations of malt, or wheat, or milk.

Best of all, though, is hot milk, and a physician who doctors wrinkles advises the heating of a cup of milk to the boiling point, without letting it scorch. To this he adds an egg, very lightly beaten, and put in so slowly that it will not curdle. A dish of salt completes this beauty nightcap.—St. Louis Republic.

Record of the Past.

The best guarantee of the future is the record of the past and over fifty thousand people have publicly testified that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured them of numerous kidney ills, from common backache to dangerous diabetes, and all the attendant annoyances and sufferings from urinary disorders. They have been cured to stay cured. Here is one case:

Samuel J. Taylor, a retired carpenter, residing at 312 South Third street, Goshen, Ind., says: "On the 25th day of August, 1897, I made an affidavit before Jacob C. Mann, notary public, stating my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. I had suffered for thirty years and was compelled at times to walk by the aid of crutches, frequently passed gravel and suffered excruciatingly. I took every medicine on the market that I heard about and some gave me temporary relief. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and the results I gave to the public in the statement above referred to. At this time, on the 19th day of July, 1902, I make this further statement that during the five years which have elapsed I have had no occasion to use either Doan's Kidney Pills or any other medicine for my kidneys. The cure effected was a permanent one."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Taylor will be mailed on application to any part of the U. S. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. 50c per box.

The Hawaiian as a Diver.

The working crews of the islands were quartered in suitable camps near their field of labor. They were native Hawaiians, good fellows, willing workers, admirably adapted to the duty required of them, which was largely in boats and in the water. I well remember one who excelled in diving. On a certain occasion, when the placing of a deep-water mooring had just been accomplished, it became necessary to detach under water the end of a hawser, which had been made fast to the submerged part of a spar-buoy, about forty or fifty feet below the surface of the sea. The man was told to take his short knife down with him and cut the hawser as near its end as he could, so as to lose as little as possible of the valuable cable. Taking his knife in his teeth, he disappeared beneath the water, and remained out of sight so long that he was almost given up for lost, when he suddenly reappeared, and, on being asked if he had cut the hawser as he had been told to, reported that he had uncut it without cutting any part of it whatever.—James D. Hague in the Century.

Unable to Rise.

Morenci, Mich., Sept. 8th.—Mr. J. S. Whitehead, of this place, has given the following letter for publication:

"Unsolicited, I wish to recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills and to return thanks for the great benefit I have derived from a few boxes of this splendid remedy."

"I had kidney trouble very bad, in fact, I suffered so much that for days at a time I could not get out of the chair where I had been sitting without assistance."

"I cannot describe the pains I suffered for they were something fearful. About seven or eight months ago I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills and very soon found that they were helping me."

"I can truthfully say that they have done me more good than all the other medicines I have ever taken."

"I have been greatly benefited by them and it is my desire to let others know so that if anyone is suffering as I suffered they may know where a cure may be found."

AN ITALIAN CAPTAIN

Cured by Pe-ru-na of Catarrh of the Stomach After Doctors Failed.

Hon. J. D. Botkin, Congressman from Kansas, Writes an Interesting Letter.

The following letter from Congressman Botkin speaks for itself:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, WASHINGTON, D.C.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.: My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Pe-ru-na and Man-amin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Pe-ru-na is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections.—J. D. Botkin.

This is a case of catarrh of the stomach which had run for twenty-five years, according to his statement, and Peruna has at once come to his relief, promptly accomplishing for him more benefit than he had been able to find in all other remedies during a quarter of a century.

It stands to reason that a man of wealth and influence, like a Congressman of the great United States, has left no ordinary means untried and no stone unturned to find a cure.

If such cures as these do not verify the claim not only that dyspepsia is due to catarrh of the stomach, but also that Peruna will cure catarrh of the stomach, it is impossible to imagine how any evidence could do so.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address: Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Sept. 10, 1902.

The Crossing Horror.

Grand Rapids has at last been called on to witness a real crossing horror such as are enacted in different parts of the country nearly every day, where railroad crossings are allowed to go from one year's end to another without any protection. One would think that after the fatality of last Wednesday it would not be necessary to urge the St. Paul company to protect their crossing at Cranberry street. One occasion like this should be sufficient to cause any company to take steps for their own protection as well as that of the public. It is more than a year since the city council passed an ordinance requiring the various railroad companies to put in gates at the principal crossings in the city, and notwithstanding the fact that they have been repeatedly notified to do so, no move has ever been made by the St. Paul company to comply with the ordinance. This crossing is known to be one of the worst in this part of the country. There are numerous tracks close together, and the sidings are invariably filled with cars close up to the road, so that it is impossible to see the main track when approaching from the west until one gets within a few feet of the track. The consequence is that there has been numerous narrow escapes right at this point, but heretofore luck has seemed to favor the community and there have been no accidents that amount to anything. In fact luck favored the crowd that was struck on Wednesday evening, for had the wagon been struck square in middle, there is no question that there would have been more fatalities. The city attorney should bestir himself to see how soon he can commence suit against the company to compel them to put in gates, as he has been empowered by the council to do so some time ago and the time is certainly now ripe. The company will put in the gates in short order when it realizes that we mean business.

The Democratic Nominees.

The democrats of the state of Wisconsin have nominated their officers, and they are as good a set of men and as able to fill the positions to which they have been nominated as any that have ever been put up by any political party in the state. The republicans realize this fact as much as anybody and as a consequence some of them have been making strenuous efforts to fix up a story about some one of them that will hold water. Up to date they have failed. The Free Press of Milwaukee laments that the delegates did not nominate some other man for governor than David S. Rose. Wonder what difference it makes to the Free Press what the other fellows do? Maybe they have already begun to figure on defeat. The chances were certainly never better for electing a democratic administration in Wisconsin than they are this year, and if the democrats get out and do their duty there is no question of the results.

Announcement.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of sheriff of Wood county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention, and if nominated and elected I shall exert my best efforts to discharge the duties of the office as they should be done. Human Flesh and Horse Flesh.

In many essentials all flesh is much alike. A remedy that will cure all manner of pains, sprains, strains, burns, scalds, cuts, bruises,
chaps, scratches, galls, chafes, sores, lameness,
wounds, inflammations and swellings occurring
in human flesh, is of equal value for like ailments
of the flesh of beasts and is useful in the household for the hurts of childhood and the accidents and ills of every day life as it is in the stable, the grooming room or the training quarters.

Such a remedy is Greene's Infalible Liniment
which is endorsed by the heads of families,
breeders, drivers, pugilists, trainers, bicyclists, athletes,—everybody, everywhere, who has used it. In proof of this claim attention is invited to the following testimonials from:

Bob Fitzsimmons, Pugilist.
"I feel that no much cannot be said in commendation of its merits." G. E. Tipton.
These testimonials are published to induce readers to try of this truly infalible Liniment,
then of themselves they will know of its merits.
Greene's Infalible Liniment sells at 25c., 50c.
and $1.00 a bottle at drug stores and by the mail.
Chicago, Ill.—If you druggists haven't it, order direct, but most druggists keep it. There is no other Liniment that can take its place and do its work.—No other that is like it or "just as good."
The makers to prove its worth will send a large
free sample in return for this advertisement and
10c. to cover cost of mailing.

Henry Knuth of Sigel was a pleasant caller at this office on Tuesday.
Mr. Knuth is running a threshing machine this fall and tells us that the grain all the way through is first class.

Special services will be held in the Congregational church on Sunday evening to commemorate the death of the late President McKinley. Special music has been prepared for the occasion.

The six months old boy of Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Knuth died on Sunday forenoon after a short illness. The funeral took place on Tuesday from the Lutheran church. Rev. Baese officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Tibbitts and daughter, Miss Mande, who have been visiting in New Brunswick and other parts of Canada during the past three months, have returned to their home

Mrs. Roena Walker of Des Moines, Iowa, and S. Strong of Plover, Iowa, arrived in the city on Wednesday to visit with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lord.
Mrs. Walker is a sister to Mrs. Lord and Mr. Strong a cousin.

E. L. Kromer returned on Tuesday from Minneapolis where he has been visiting relatives the past ten days.
Mrs. Kromer continued on to Stevens Point to spend a few days with friends before her return here.

J. W. Cochran and son William left on Tuesday for Janesville where William will pursue his studies in the school for the blind. Mr. Cochran will visit at Milwaukee and attend the state fair before his return.

—FOR SALE.—Black stallion half Belgian, white face, age 5 years, weight between 15 and 16 hundred, has stood two years and raised some fine colts. For further particulars

Nelson Derosia died at Stevens Point on Friday last at the age of sixty-five years. Deceased was at one time a resident of this city, but left here many years ago. He was well known to lumbermen along the river.

Earl Doyle of Medford was in the city for several days the past week visiting with relatives. He left this morning in company with Raymond Johnson for South Bend, Ind., where the two young men will attend Notre Dame College during the coming year.

Mrs. A. H. Barr and children, who have spent the past three weeks at Merrill visiting with Mr. Barr, who is employed there, returned home on Saturday. It is probable that Mrs.
Barr will remove to Merrill as soon as a suitable house to live in can be obtained.

X. H. Robinson on Monday shipped to Fred Stubley of Black Earth his fine Jersey bull, Ralph Recorder which he recently sold to Mr. Stubley. Consideration $125. The animal is a fine specimen and weighs 1600 lbs. and is five years old.

—FOR SALE.—Three stoves, 2 round oak and one base burner wood stove; also one roll top desk 30x48. For further particulars call on John Schnabel at the Mackinnon factory or at residence corner of Oak and Maple
streets, west side.

The city schools now open at 1:30 p.
m. instead of 1:15 as heretofore, the
change giving the children fifteen minutes more in which to secure their dinner, which is a good thing owing
to the great distance that many of them have to travel.

Miss Laura Whitrock, who had spent the past two weeks with relatives
and friends at Stevens Point and
other places returned home on Friday
and has resumed her position as stenographer in the law office of Wheelan & Wheelan.

Little Alvia Bartholomew, daughter

is withal a pretty good paper. We wish Ray success in his new field of labor.

Peter Moberg, one of the solid
farmers of Sigel, was a pleasant
caller at the Tribune office on Tuesday. Mr. Moberg stated that he had
a large crop on his farm this year,
his oats being especially fine. He
sowed 30 sacks and threshed 1400
bushels. Mr. Moberg also offers his five year old stallion for sale, an advice of which will be found in another column.

W. H. Fitch, secretary of the Wisconsin State Cranberry Growers Association, was in the city on Sunday and Monday, being engaged in preparing the report of the recent convention of the association for publication. Mr. Fitch stated that there had been some frost down his
way, the thermometer having gotten
as low as 28 degrees above zero at one time, which is uncomfortably near the
danger point for cranberry growers.
Mr. Fitch also had with him a new fangled berry rake which appeared to be quite an improvement over the old
style of heavy rake that has been in use heretofore.

A Good Opportunity.

We have been fortunate in procuring one of the best brands of canned fruit, vegetables and preserves that can be canned in the United States which is the famous Curcio Bros. of Rochester, N. Y. We are their direct

that we have, and you ought to see
the friends that it has, is the old stand
by Bunker Hill, 35c per pound, 3 lbs.
for $1.00. Our next brand is Oraz-Aba put up in 2 lb. red cans and sold
at 25c per pound, and nicer, flavored
coffee you cannot get anywhere unless
you pay a great deal more money.
The last and not the least of our best brands of coffee is Gona. Here is a 25c coffee that we have sold for years
at 20c per pound. If you haven't used Gona, ask your neighbor about
it. It's as good as many coffees you pay 25 and 30c for at other stores.

CHAPTER V.

Captain Grant had paused sharply in a desultory ramble. There stood before him one upon whom his eyes became glued, and as he looked upon her features it could be plainly seen that he gave quite a start, though immediately after he was himself again, cool and collected.

"Who are you, girl, and what do you seek here?" he asked, somewhat haughtily.

"I am Barbara Merriles, the gypsy," replied the girl, her eager eyes first fastened upon his face wonderingly, expectantly, and then, with a disappointed expression, turning upon his hand.

Captain Grant had held his left hand behind him, seemingly in a careless manner. As yet she had not been able to catch even a glimpse of it.

"I am searching for a man," she continued.

That look betrayed him. He might disguise his features, alter his voice beyond recognition, but the eyes of hate are keener than those of love, and Barbara Merriles had seen that expression in his eyes too often to forget it. She knew him now.

"I have searched far and wide for him," she said—"the man who ruined my life, and killed my gypsy mother through his heartlessness to me. I flattered myself that I would know him, no matter where or when I met him, such was my hate for him; but I was wrong. Once I thought I had found him, and only after my dagger had almost taken his life did I realize my mistake and curse my blindness. The man I had followed so long was not the Roger Darrel who wrecked my life, but one to whom I owe much in the past. But my work is nearly done. The monster who wrecked my life still lives, and I have found him. Heaven be praised for this moment. Hold out your hand, friend, scoundrel! Ho! the black glove! That is the last proof. Here the trail ends. For many weary months I have sought a demon in human shape, and now I have found him. You are the man!"

Her intensely black eyes were bent upon the form of the man before her, as

All the terrible wrongs of the past must have rushed over the young gypsy girl and overwhelmed her, so that she hardly knew what she was doing, save that the object that had been the dream of her life for a long time back was in a fair way of being consummated.

She would have been no mean antagonist for any man in her present condition, for the fury in her heart had made her muscles like steel. Her lithe frame was drawn up to its fullest extent, and such a picture of supple grace could not well be found elsewhere.

With a cry like that of an enraged animal, the gypsy girl sprang forward. She had been closed to Captain Grant, and this movement would have hurled her form upon him had he remained in his old position—which he did not.

When he saw that time for action had arrived, and that the vengeful girl was coming at him like a tornado, the duelist Captain quickly stepped aside.

The movement was so abrupt that there was no time given Barbara Merriles to recover herself, and as a consequence, not meeting with the resistance she had expected in the shape of her foe, she tottered upon the very brink of the awful precipice.

Even then she might have recovered her equilibrium and saved herself, but it seemed as though it were fated she should perish, for the earth crumbled away beneath her weight, and, with a sharp cry, she went down.

When hope seemed indeed lost, a ray came to her, for her hands, thrown out with a clutch of despair, fastened upon a root that jutted from the face of the cliff at its very top. There she clung, unable to help herself, hanging between life and death!

He could have saved her if he would. One exertion of his muscular power, and she would have been lifted to life. How could she have ever again attempted to slay him when this was the case?

But he was a man without a heart.

Kneeling down, he saw her face, white now from terror, the great black eyes looking up at him in a pleading way, but he even smiled sardonically, and uttering one word, "Farewell," walked a few paces away to where he could only see the small brown hands clutching the root in a death grasp. Then he turned his back upon the spot.

THERE SHE CLUNG BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH.

though she would scorch him with the fire that was contained in them, while her right hand was raised, and the dexter finger pointed at her enemy as if she would send a poisoned dart to his heart.

"Yes, you are the man, the fiend, the demon who destroyed my peace. Deny it if you dare!"

The man laughed sneeringly.

"I have no choice left me, only to protest against the endearing adjectives you apply to my poor self. If you ask me plainly, am I the man who once thought he loved you, and, finding out his mistake, deserted you rather than remain and bring you to more pain, I answer, I am he."

"Then you have pronounced your doom. Among the peaks of the Pyrenees I made my terrible vow to hunt you down to the death, even if it took years to accomplish it, and I have never forgotten that vow in the long time that has elapsed since then. I knew that fate would bring us face to face again, and time has proven how wise I was in my belief."

The keen silhouette of the gypsy girl flashed in the sunlight. To many a man the sight would have been one full of horror, for the Captain stood so close to the edge of a precipice that it seemed as though a touch would send him over, and the enraged girl was half-crouched, ready to fly at him like a panther.

Not a nerve of his frame trembled, and yet he knew full well his danger. At such a time every faculty was needed to save himself, and the soldier could not afford to give way to trembling. He even smiled in her face.

"I see you are like a tiger cat, and seek my life. Before you go a step farther I wish to warn you, girl, that the consequences will fall upon your own head. For the last time, Barbara, beware. If you come on, it will be to your death."

His face changed with the rapidity of lightning, and in place of the sneering smile had come a savage look, while his brow was corrugated and his eyes flashed like little lightning.

"You waste your breath, Roger Darrel; false love, base fiend! Here I am, resolved to avenge the past, and it is just as well for you, as I would never leave you in peace as long as I lived. Here is Barbara Merriles' blow for revenge!"

He saw that nothing he could say or do would keep her back; for the time being she was crazed with fury, and would have leaped at him had she known that certain death lay beyond, but neither by look nor movement did he let her see that he feared her.

and fate, and something seemed to tell him that all would come out well.

So far as Barbara Merriles was concerned this had come true, for she would trouble him no more, unless her spirit could come back to haunt the man who had been the curse of her life, a thing that the Captain had no fear of.

Thus affairs were allowed to drift along in their own way, and the fatal hour drew near when the climax was to come. The young girl felt her soul recoil in horror at the thought of making a sacrifice even for her father's sake, for he had given her to understand just about how it was.

Still it was not so bad as it might have been at a former time. Her heart lay dead within her, and she could not take half the interest in matters that she might otherwise have done, but yet the idea of marriage with that man was quite enough to horrify her.

There was one, however, whose interest in her never flagged, and that person was Roger Darrel. He knew she loved him, and, if her scruples would not permit her to marry him he was at least determined that she should not be forced to marry another against her will.

There was one of the servants at the Terrace who had become aware of the love that existed between his young mistress and the master of Darrel Chase, and whom, some time previous, Roger had been in a situation to assist in a material way.

After that event Andrew had taken it upon himself to convey all that he saw and heard in reference to Miss Carol to Roger Darrel. He did not act in a mean manner, but, believing that his object was good, and that the end justified the means, he was continually on the lookout for something blinding on the case.

Thus the young master of Darrel Chase was aware of all things of importance that were transpiring at the Terrace. He learned, with great surprise and anger, of the plans that were being perfected for the speedy marriage of Carol.

Both the Captain and Lawrence Richmond would have been amazed could they have learned how much of their mutual understanding was known. Roger was quite well aware of the fact that the soldier duelist possessed a secret which he held over the head of Carol's father, and that this same secret was to be the "open sesame" to the old gentleman's treasures.

He knew that Carol hated this Captain Grant, whoever he might be, and he became firmly resolved that, if it must be the last act of his life, he would prevent the unholy marriage. Since words would be of no avail, he was ready to proceed to still stronger measures.

He remembered the story of young Lochinvar, who carried off his bride just when she was about to be married to another, and yet the cases were far from being parallel, for in this instance there was a barrier between them, and, even though he saved Carol from such a fate, it would not bring them any closer together.

Meanwhile preparations were going on at the Terrace for the wedding of Captain Grant and Carol. The young girl had not spirit enough just then to resist. Her faith in Roger was not gone, but it had received a terrible shock, and this rendered her quiescent with the numb pain that filled her heart.

The preparations were not of a magnificent nature, for it was the Captain's wish that the ceremony should be quiet. What was his object in this, he, the man so full of display and love of ostentation, they could not comprehend; but Lawrence Richmond suspected that he was afraid some one who had known him in the past might learn of his whereabouts.

Filled with this idea, the Virginian made haste to have an announcement of the coming marriage in several different papers of Washington and Richmond. With rare cunning he also contrived to have a little item go the rounds of the press in reference to a row the soldier had made years before, to always wear his left hand covered by a black kid glove.

"If that doesn't bring the Philistines down upon him, then all is lost."

So said the master of the Terrace to himself as he read some of the notices that were in the papers, and then carefully hid the sheets away for fear the Captain should alight upon them.

Army Doctors Are Scarce.

There seems to be great reluctance on the part of young physicians to seek careers in the army, although the ranks of the profession in civil life are greatly overcrowded. Many vacancies still continue in the commissioned medical corps of the army, notwithstanding the efforts of the surgeon general to secure doctors for his branch of the service. The professional examination is more or less rigid, but to a young doctor, newly graduated, it ought not to be such an insurmountable obstacle as in many cases it seems to prove. The physician requirements are also very strict, and quite a number of applicants fail to pass this part of the examination, where they would doubtless have succeeded professionally. An assistant surgeon in the army commences his military life with the rank, pay and allowances of a captain. He receives a commission which carries with it life tenure.

Wu Appreciated the Joke.

Congressman Landis, of Indiana, was a guest the other night at a dinner given by Dr. Hill, Assistant Secretary of State, among the other guests being Minister Wu, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Patent Commissioner Allen.

During the course of the dinner Secretary Wilson began displaying his knowledge of things agricultural. "The peach," he took occasion to remark, "originally came from China."

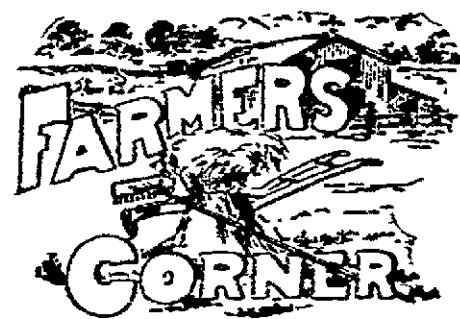

"Indeed!" remarked Minister Wu, much interested.

"Everybody knew that," interrupted Mr. Allen, "as soon as they met Mr. Wu."

The Chinese minister laughed at the compliment until his sides shook. He knows what it is to be a "peach."—Washington Post.

Cost Per Mile of Electric Cars.

It is figured that the cost of electric motive power per mile traveled by a car is between 3 and 4 cents.

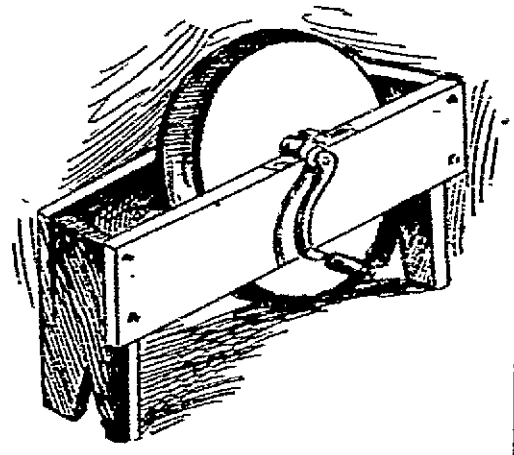

Mounting a Grindstone.

For ordinary stones, says a Farm and Home correspondent, the frame should be built 18 inches wide, 30 inches high and 36 inches long. Make the ends of 3 by 8-inch stuff and the sides of 2 by 8-inch. Plane it up nicely, bolt it securely together and give it a good coat of paint.

One can buy very good sets of grindstone irons now for 50 cents, including a mandrel roller, bearings and crank. I have one very serious objection to the common grindstone mandrel, and that is that the crank does not screw on, but has a square end, on which the crank does not fit, but flops about "any old way" and very often causes the one who is furnishing the power to bruise or skin his knuckle against the frame.

The first thing I would do with such a mandrel would be to take it to the nearest blacksmith shop, saw the square end off with a hack saw, run

a drill through the square hole in the crank and make it round, run a tap through the crank and thread the end of the mandrel. By so doing you have a good steady, easy-going crank, without any backlash. Fit a piece of wood in the square hole in the stone, find the exact center with your dividers; then bore a hole the size of the mandrel through the block. Use a piece of thick pasteboard on each side of the stone between the iron washer and the stone. Put the stone on the mandrel, observing to use the washers as above, and screw the nut up hard and fast.

Home-Made Milk-Cooler.

Where one does not have sufficient milk to have an elaborate method of keeping it cool, or where such a plan is not warranted, a substitute may be found in the homemade cooler shown this week. Secure a strong box, large enough to hold three or four cans, and line it with zinc to make it water-tight.

Have the box high enough so that the water may come to within six inches of the neck of the cans. A rack made of strong strips an inch thick and two inches wide (see Figure 3) is fitted in the bottom of the box, and another rack (see Figure 2) is fitted to the top of the box to prevent the cans from slipping over or upsetting when the box is full.

HOME-MADE MILK COOLER.

of water or when one or more cans are removed. The detail shown at Figure 2 shows how this top rack is braced at the corners.—Indianapolis News.

Treatment of Celery.

The first thing to do is to prevent rust and blight, which is readily done by spraying, and this should be done when the plants are not more than two or three inches high. Use bordeaux mixtures applied gently while the plants are small, and make a second application when the plants are six inches high; if a third application is needed, give it regardless of the size of the plants. After the care in spraying or rather along with it comes the cultivation and this, must be done, at least in part, by hand, for the weeds must be kept out of the rows at all cost. Blanching is next in order, and the board process is by far the best, for it enables the plants to get plenty of light, so as to keep up their growth. Place the boards close to the rows of plants holding them in place with stakes. After the plants grow above the height of the boards, bring the latter close together at the top, without bruising the plants, so that the space is dark and the plants will continue to grow.

Raspberry and Blackberry.

Upon the care given the plantations of raspberry and blackberry plants after fruiting largely depends the crops of the next season. Cultivation of the space between the rows and around the plants should be thorough so that the weeds may be kept in subjection and the moisture in the soil conserved that the canes may make all the growth possible. It is necessary to obtain strong, healthy and well ripened lateral growths during the growing season if the plants are to give a full crop the next season. By keeping up the cultivation the plant is kept growing and the foliage clings until cut off by the frosts in the fall; if cultivation is not done the plant, weakened perhaps by heavy fruiting, is likely to shed its leaves and the new growth of vine is subjected to the warm weather of the late summer.

Broom Corn.

Almost every family has one or more brooms in the house, and very few have any idea where the broom corn comes from, or how it came to be grown here. We may have told before, but it will bear to be repeated, that Benjamin Franklin picked the first seed that were ever planted here from an imported broom, and sent them to a lady friend to be planted. In 1899 the State of Illinois had 95,137 acres in broom corn, and produced 60,655,320 pounds, valued at $2,357,066 in the hands of the growers. Kansas had 34,353 acres, and the product was 11,813,310 pounds, worth $458,481. Oklahoma had 12,366 acres and a crop of 3,418,490 pounds, worth $129,813, and Missouri with 10,219 acres had 3,693,930 pounds, worth $159,990. It will be seen that the largest acreage does not always produce the largest crop or the most money. Texas had 3,743 acres and a crop of 1,638,150 pounds, worth $60,313; Arkansas 879 acres, producing 304,609, worth $12,558, and Indian Territory, 397 acres, with 147,020 pounds, worth $7,018. There are amounts grown in other States that bring the total crop up to 90,947,370 pounds in 1899, and that was thought a short year, though the yield was probably less in 1900. California, Iowa, Nebraska and Tennessee are among the other States producing broom corn. The value of the broom corn crop averages about $80 per ton, or $20 an acre.

Low Farm Wagons.

An enormous amount of force is wasted in loading material into high farm wagons. It is fortunate that this truth is being discovered and lower gears are put into use. This sketch shows a convenient low farm wagon, commodious and light, but strong enough to make loading a very easy matter. The long body has a truss under it to support the middle, the chain being attached well under the body at the front to avoid the wheels in turning. Side and end pieces can be put upon such a body and a wagon box made if needed. Let the wheels be not only low, but let them have broad rims, so they will not cut into the land when

Government Whitewash.

The United States government uses a whitewash mainly on lighthouses, that is brilliant and durable. Considerable whitewash ought to be used on the farm. Poultry houses may be covered with it inside and out, and it may be used to advantage on fences. The recipe is as follows: Slake one-half bushel of quicklime with boiling water, covering it as soon as the water is applied. When slaked strain it and add a peck of salt, dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice that has previously been boiled in boiling water to a thin paste, half a pound of Spanish whiting and one pound of clean glue, which has been dissolved in warm water, mix well together and let stand for several days. The wash should be applied hot, using a brush or making it sufficiently thin so that it may be applied by a spraying pump.

To Stop a Sucking Cow.

To stop a sucking cow take a piece of half inch basswood six inches long and four inches wide and cut into the shape shown in picture. Put this in her nose. If she does not stop, put sharp nails in, as indicated by dots. If she is cute enough to milk herself with the nails in, then put on a halter and a surcingle. Fasten a stiff hardwood stick on each side from halter to surcingle, placing the surcingle of course just back of the fore legs. If she is so determined to suck herself that she will throw herself with this harness, I should feed her abundantly upon fat forming foods and visit the butcher.—Rural New Yorker.

Garden Hints.

When getting the window boxes and garden urns ready use good, fresh soil. Nothing is gained, and much may be lost, by economizing in the matter of earth.

If the violets and other spring and autumn bloomers show signs of mildew or mold because of too much rain, cut off close to the ground immediately. The plants will find it easier to make renewed growth than to recover from this creeping and insidious disease.

After all, the scarlet geranium can scarcely be surpassed as a garden standard. It can be set out at any time, and a number of good geraniums will yet save the summer's happiness for the flower lovers whose treasures have suffered from the unusual weather. Let them buy red geraniums and be comforted with vivid bloom.

FINDS STRANGE ANIMAL.

LA CROSSE MAN FINDS NEST OF UNKNOWN SPECIES IN WELL.

Shape of Animal Resembles a Miniature Hippopotamus with Legs Cut Off Near the Body.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Bert Studeant, employed by Thill & Lippitz of this city, yesterday ran onto a nest of animals, the name of which no local student of the animal science has yet been able to tell. The animals were found down a well which he was repairing.

The premises are in the eastern portion of the city. When he took the boards off the top he noticed a strange animal clinging to the pump. He promptly knocked it off, when he discovered others, and his curiosity becoming aroused, he captured one and put it in alcohol. The specimen captured is about three or four inches long, cream color with black markings about a quarter of an inch long all over the body. In shape the animal resembles a miniature hippopotamus with its legs sawed off close to the body. From the large nostrils two forks of a spindle tongue protrude, with this the animal feels its way about. It has no eyes at all, indicating that it is a species that lives in caves or other dark places. It is of a consistency very clammy and damp. Just what the animal is and how it got there is a mystery, for it is evidently miles from its regular place to La Crosse.

There has always been a mystery connected with the well where the animal was found. There can be felt at times on hot days gusts of fresh, cold air which evidently come from the interior of the earth. The air is damp and there is a sound of running water heard through the loose sand at the bottom. It is in the populous eastern portion of town.

WIFE OF SPARTA JUDGE STRICKEN AT A SOCIAL.

Was Taken Ill at Mayor Gross' Residence and Expired Several Hours Later.

Sparta, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. H. E. Kelly, wife of Justice Kelly, was stricken with apoplexy yesterday at 6 o'clock while attending a social at the residence of Mayor Gross. She was taken home and died at midnight. Deceased was one of Sparta's foremost ladies in social and church circles and stepmother to Edgar Kelly, the celebrated musician and composer. The funeral will be held Monday.

Mrs. Thomas Connor, aged 65 years, an old resident of Sparta, died last night after a lingering illness of her stomach. The husband and two sons survive. The funeral will be held Monday.

KILLED BY LIVE WIRE.

Albert Jacob, a Beloit Telephone Line-man, Meets Instant Death While at Work.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Albert G. Jacob, aged about 25, residing at Fort Atkinson and employed by the Wisconsin Telephone Company, was instantly killed this afternoon, by a live wire, which was crossed with the Beloit, Rockford & Janesville Electric Railway Company.

Steps Being Taken for Larger Water Supply at Green Bay.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—A matter of better fire protection has again been taken up by the larger mill and factory owners of this city and an effort is being made to compel the Green Bay Water Company to give the city the required amount of water for use in the time of fire which is not being done at the present time. A meeting was called last evening by the owners of the large factories and mills of this city at which time they discussed the water system and will compel the water company to give them the proper fire protection. The waterworks plant in this city has been in poor condition for the past year and the city is not safe if a large fire should break out as the required pressure cannot be given the fire department.

OSHKOSH GIRL SUICIDES.

Objection of Parents to Her Keeping Company with Man the Cause.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 6.—Clara Oehler, the 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Anna Rebensohn, committed suicide at a home Thursday evening by taking carbolic acid. According to Fred Rebensohn, of Fond du Lac, who is visiting his mother, the family were sitting in the sitting room when the girl went upstairs to her room. She was not seen again until about 9 o'clock, when found lying on the bed. The cause for her fatal act is said to be the opposition of her family to her keeping company with Fred Hunter. The girl had been infatuated with the young man, but her family did not approve of her choice.

INSANE WANDERER IS FOUND.

Chicago Woman, a Fellower of Dowie, is Located at Kenosha.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 6.—Mrs. H. Brews, who has been missing from her home at 426 Fulton street, Chicago, for several weeks, has been located at Hotel Kenosha in this city. The woman is deranged and it is claimed that her mental troubles have resulted from her zeal in seeking converts to John Alexander Dowie and his religion. After considerable labor the police managed to discover the friends of the woman in Chicago. She was taken there last evening.

CORN CROP IS BACKWARD.

Farmers are Worried Over the Condition of the Grain.

Plainfield, Wis., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Farmers over Adams, Wood and Wauwasha counties are worried over their corn crop which is the best backward in many years, much of the corn needing two weeks of good warm weather to fully mature. The past two weeks have been cool and corn is not ripened much if any and the weather has indications of frost, which would ruin the corn crop. A light frost was reported this morning on the low lands.

Mound Conceals a Big Cave.

Vernon, Wis., Sept. 6.—Excavations made on the Nicolai farm near here have revealed a big cave under the mound. In the cave are many Indian relics. Skeletons were also found, as were a number of Indian records.

Kills Herself in Green Bay Jail.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 6.—Christine Ribbie was sent to the county jail yesterday morning for thirty days for vagrancy. Not long after she committed suicide by taking carbolic acid and was found dead on a couch in the jail when dinner was taken to her.

The W. H. Fitch family and guests spent a day last week at Nekoosa and vicinity, inspecting the plant of the Nekoosa Paper Co. and enjoying sights and scenes along the river. On Sunday they attended church at Nekoosa.

Cranberry picking is in full blast this week and although carloads of pickers have arrived, the supply is not yet equal to the demand. The temperature is still so low that heavy frosts are imminent.

Mr. Mrs. and Miss Galligan and Miss Nellie Young of Nekoosa were visiting some of the marshes Monday to see the cranberry in its native bog and witness the picking of the fruit.

The large new warehouse of the Arpin Co. is up, enclosed and shingled. Work is being pushed fast as possible to have the use of the building this season.

Miss Dorothy Fitch went to Nekoosa on the morning train Monday to care for her brother who was taken suddenly ill.

Miss Amelia Kluge of Vesper went home Saturday morning, returning Sunday for the cranberry picking.

Charles, Eddie and Miss Myra Kruger are at home this week, helping out during the busy season.

Miss Kirtie Cahill accompanied Harriet Whittlesey home from Walker Thursday evening last.

Miss Cora Grimshaw is at home again and is one of the assistants at the Arpin marsh.

Chas. S. Whittlesey was a home visitor over Sunday.

Notice.

—The following notice appeared in the Jacksonville, Ill., Courier on March 15, 1902, and will be of interest to many people in this vicinity. Mr. Noah Wellman of Peoria, Ill., for the past fifteen years a trusted employe of the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville Railroad Co., says: "I have tried different cough remedies and have never found any to be equal to Hart's Honey and Horehound for the cure of coughs, and would not be without it at hand. The children like the pleasant taste of Hart's Honey and Horehound and a trial will convince anyone of the special merit of this medicine." Large bottles twenty-five and fifty cents. Sold by Sam Church, druggist.

BABCOCK.

Quite a number of our townsmen left today to attend the state fair. Among those who went were W. F. Noltner, Wm. Remington, Henry Grier, Rudolph Haas and John Close.

G. W. Lyons has been very busy the past week, marking and arranging a nice line of fall and winter goods to supply the wants of his many customers.

Mrs. G. W. Lyons was a visitor in Grand Rapids for a couple of days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ingraham of Daly were shopping in town on Monday.

The hunters report prairie chickens very scarce this year in this vicinity.

Water Cure for Chronic Constipation.

—Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of outdoor exercise—walk, ride drive. Make a regular habit of this and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of medicine. When a purgative is required take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

BIRON.

Miss Inez Moody and Miss Mabel Horton of Stevens Point visited over Sunday with Mrs. A. Fanst, returning to the Point on the Monday morning train.

Miss Nettie Akey left last Saturday for Milwaukee for a few weeks' visit, where she will attend the state fair.

J. H. Noyes has re-shingled A. Kempfert's farm house lately.

A. Kempfert took a ride to the Scott farm Sunday.

Josh Westhafer, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralysis. It is for sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

On Monday morning at 8:30 at the Catholic church, Rev. Van Seyer officiating, occurred the marriage of two of Rudolph's most popular young people, the contracting parties being Carl Omholt, son of John Omholt, and Miss Rosa Sharkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Sharkey. Wilfred Sharkey and Miss Maud Sharkey, brother and cousin of the bride, acted as best man and bridesmaid. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride, where a bounteous dinner was served. In the evening a social hop was given in Logan's hall, where a large crowd of friends and relatives of the newly married couple spent a most delightful evening in dancing. Refreshments were also served. Mr. and Mrs. Omholt will make their home in Grand Rapids and their many friends here wish them a happy journey through life.

Andrew King of Grand Rapids, reasserting the E. F. U., was in the city the first of the week looking for candidates. He met with good success. A week ago Saturday nine ladies were taken into the order here and they are coming right to the front.

Pleasant to the Taste.

—One of the most important requirements in a medicine to be given to small children should be that it is pleasant to the taste. Bad tasting medicines disturb the stomach destroy the appetite and it is extremely difficult to get children to take them. The pleasant flavor of Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup the certain cure for dyspepsia, constipation, and biliousness, pleases the most sensitive persons and is the ideal laxative for young children. LONG-SIGHT OR HYPERMETROPIA.

The normal eye is always round like an orange. In this defect the diameter of the eye is too short from front to rear. People with this deformity are generally born that way and it stays with them to the grave. It is usually called long sight not because the person can see first rate at a distance perhaps but because they can see much better than they can close by. School children with this defect, and you will meet them quite often, on account of the prolonged use of the eye in reading and study suffer much from fatigue. Headaches, blurring and smarting of the eyes, and a long train of unpleasant symptoms can be perfectly corrected if properly fitted with glasses.
